Sportsman Park, St. Louis, Oct. 9.—The New York Yankees won their second successive world series today, defeating the St. Louis Cards 7 to 3 and cleaning up the 1928 world series in four straight games.

The Yank victory was a repetition of last year's triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates who also lost in four games, but today's game produced thrills which the 37,331 fans in Sportsman Park will never forget, for the Cards seemed to have the game won until the fatal seventh inning, when the blow fell.

Babe Ruth led the attack in that inning with his second home run of the game—he made three of them all together today, equalling his own world's record established here two years ago.

The Babe's homer in the fatal inning started Willie Sherdel, who had pitched ably up until that time, on the road to disaster. Gehrig followed with a homer and then the Cards went to pieces just as they had done in the previous games.

Old Grover Cleveland Alexander came in to try to save the day but he was woefully ineffective and two homers were hit off him in the eighth inning.

Hoyt was hit freely in his second appearance against the National league champions.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 9.—The wearisome, one-sided world series of 1928 was resumed here this afternoon under a bright blue canopy of clear Missouri skies in the presence of far fewer fans than witnessed the weird Sunday game in which the New York Yanks scored their third straight victory over the St. Louis Cards.

Waite Hoyt was elected by Miller Tuggins to apply to the ruffled Red Birds a coat of the same whitewash dealt out to the Pittsburgh Pirates a year ago.

Anxious to escape the ignominy of defeat in four consecutive games without a single victory, Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cards, entrusted the pitching job to his little left-hander, Willie Sherdel, who did so well in the opener at Yankee stadium. McKechnie also had old Grover Alexander take his turn in batting practice and warm-up, ready for duty if he should be needed.

An hour before game time, with the fans drifting rather disinterestedly into the ball park and hundreds of vacant seats yet to be filled, the Cards' manager announced that he would stand pat on his original lineup instead of making a last-minute shakeup.

The Yank special was ordered to have steam up and be ready to leave for New York with the world champions at 7 P. M. in anticipation of another victory.

The betting was five to four in favor of the American Leaguers to win today's game.

So warm was the afternoon that a majority of the fans, even some in the shadows of the double-decked stands, sat in their shirt sleeves.

The band perspired in its high-collared uniforms, but kept up a brave roar of popular airs.

The Cards went through their batting practice with vim and vigor, but the crowd looked on without much display of interest.

But when the Yanks took their turn, then the yelling started. One leather-lunged rooster in the distant right field bleachers called insistently for a "homer" when Ruth came up to take his three cuts at the ball. He got more than he asked for; the Babe drove two tremendous wallop in succession entirely over the stands and far out into Grand Avenue.

Before the game, the Cards were presented with watches which, according to the announcer, "had been dropped 1,000 feet from an airplane and picked up in perfect condition."

On the march of the band around the diamond, led by Al Schacht, the bandsman with the big horn bumped into Babe Ruth, knocking the latter's cap off. Band music spilled in every direction and the Babe barked angrily at the unhappy bandsman who apologized profusely.

There was not a whisper of applause as the Cards, in their white

DESPAIRING FIGHT CONDUCTED FOR YOUNG HICKMAN

MAJORITY OF SUPREME COURT MEMBERS REFUSE APPEAL

HICKMAN'S LAWYER TO SEEK CLEMENCY FROM GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA

Washington, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—William Edward Hickman's last hope of escaping the gallows on Oct. 19 through a court appeal vanished today.

His lawyer, Jerome Walsh, announced after a majority of five members of the U. S. supreme court had refused the kidnaper-slayer an appeal from the California supreme court decision upholding the sentence that he had given up the court fight, and would return to California to seek clemency from Governor Young.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was the last to turn down Hickman's appeal, which charged that the new California law under which he slayer of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school-girl, was convicted, was a violation of constitutional "due process of law."

Previously Justices Sutherland, Brandeis, Van Devanter and Butler had denied the formal appeal which would be preliminary to the stay of execution desired.

"I feel that Richard H. Cantillon of Los Angeles and I have exhausted every legal remedy left to Hickman," Walsh said. "We have done our complete duty as his lawyers, even though that apparently won't save him."

home uniforms, ran out onto the field for fielding practice. It was the first time during any world series that a home team has been greeted with absolute indifference on such an occasion.

The line-ups:
Yankees—Paschal, cf; Koenig, ss; Ruth, 1f; Gehrig, 1b; Meusel, rf; Lazzari, 2b; Dugan 3b; Bengough, c; Hoyt, p.

Cardinals—Orsatti, cf; High, 3b; Frisch, 2b; Bottomley, 1b; Hafe, 1f; Smith, c; Harper, rf; Maranville, ss; Sherdel, p.

Umpires—Pfirman at the plate; Owens at first; Rigler at second and McGowan at third.

The Cardinals took the field at 1:25 P. M.

FIRST INNING

YANKEES—Paschal up. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Ball one, wide. Ball two, low. Foul. Paschal hit a long foul into left field stands. Paschal raised a high foul to Earl Smith for the first out. Koenig up. Koenig singled to left on the first pitch. Ruth up. Ball one, wide. Strike one, called. Ball two, low. Ruth lined to Bottomley who stepped on first and then threw to Maranville to catch Koenig at second for a fast double play. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

Bottomley wasn't sure whether the ball hit to him was a line drive or a bouncer so he made sure by making the play both ways. The ball made one bounce before it got to him.

CARDINALS—Orsatti up. Foul, strike one. Strike two, called. Orsatti called out on strikes. High up. Ball one, wide. High hit a fluke double to left, Ruth having an easy catch but losing the ball in the sun. Frisch up. Strike one, called. Ball one, wide. Strike two, called. Ball two, wide. Ball three, wide. Frisch struck out, swinging at the last pitch. Bottomley up. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Ball one, outside. Ball two, inside. Ball three, wide. Bottomley walked, the last pitch being high and outside. Hafe up. Hafe out, Hoyt to Gehrig. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

Hoyt went after a low curve on the pitch and just tapped the ball in front of the plate, Hoyt easily throwing him out.

SECOND INNING

YANKEES—Gehrig up. Ball one, inside. Ball two, low and outside.

GRAF ZEPPELIN, DIRIGIBLE, BEING GROOMED FOR START

LARGEST EVER BUILT AWAIT- ING ONLY FAVORABLE WEATHER REPORT

TO START ON FLIGHT TO UNITED STATES TOMORROW MORNING

By ERIC KEYSER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 9.—The Graf Zeppelin, largest dirigible ever built, was filled with fuel and gas today and awaited only a weather report before starting on a flight to the United States.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, designer of the ship, was anxious to start tomorrow morning, despite somewhat unfavorable weather reports over the Atlantic.

He awaited the late weather reports today before deciding definitely to start in the morning or wait another day.

The list of passengers will not be made public until tonight. It will include two or three Americans, German officials and other guests, besides the dirigible's officers and crew of about 40. Probably about 70 persons in all will make the trip.

The lifting bags inside the 770 foot envelope were filled with more than 2,000,000 cubic feet of hydrogen to provide the ship with the necessary buoyancy. The fuel bags held half that amount of "blue gas" for motive power.

Ball three, outside. Strike one, called. Gehrig walked, the fourth ball being wide. Meusel up. Foul, strike one. Ball one, outside. Foul, strike two. Smith leaned into the stands and nearly got the ball. Meusel fanned, swinging at the third one. Lazzari up. Ball one, low. Strike one, swung. Strike two, swung. Ball two, inside. Lazzari fled to Maranville back of third base. Dugan up. Strike one, called. Dugan fled to Frisch, a high fly right into Frankie's hands. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

Sherdel looked most effective in this inning, although he worked too hard on Gehrig and issued his first pass.

CARDINALS—Harper up. Strike one, called. Harper out, Lazzari to Gehrig on an easy bouncer. Smith up. Strike one, called. Foul, strike two. Smith singled through the box. Maranville up. Ball one, inside. Strike one, called. Smith out, stealing. Bengough to Koenig. Ball two, Maranville hit into right field for a double, the ball bounding off Meusel's glove. The Rabbit missed a hit and run play on the previous pitch, which accounted for Smith's being thrown out. Sherdel up. Ball one, outside. Strike one, swung. Sherdel lined to Gehrig, a drive straight into Lou's hands. NO RUNS. TWO HITS. NO ERRORS.

A fan in the upper left field stands back of third base was knocked out by a foul drive from Earl Smith's bat. After first aid was applied he stayed with the game.

THIRD INNING

YANKEES—Bengough up. Strike one, called. Ball one, low. Ball two, low. Bengough singled off the left field wall. Hafe making a quick return. Hoyt up. Hoyt sacrificed Smith to second, being put out by Sun. Bottomley. Paschal up. Paschal out, High to Bottomley, Bengough going to third. High had a chance to tag Bengough on the base line but let him get by. Koenig up. Ball one, low and outside. Foul, strike one. Ball two, low. Strike two, called. Koenig out, Frisch to Bottomley. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

CARDINALS—Orsatti up. Ball one, outside. Foul, strike one. Strike two, called. Ball two, outside. Ball three, high. Orsatti singled back of second, went on to second when Paschal was slow in fielding, stretching his hit into a double. The off-

SHIPSTEAD IS PROUD OF RECORD AND COMMITTEES

GLORIES IN HIS INDEPENDENCE. "HANGING TO NO MAN'S COAT-TAILS"

SAYS HIS RECORD FOR LEGISLA- TION COMPARES FAVORABLY WITH ANY SENATOR

Senator Henrik Shipstead, when shown a statement that Donald G. Hughes, Minneapolis attorney, had come out for Arthur E. Nelson, because Shipstead "had not declared his stand on prohibition or whom he supported for the presidency," stated that he had no answer to make Mr. Hughes. The senator said he had nothing to say for quotation in the matter. Hughes, it will be remembered, was the attorney of former Senator Magnus Johnson when the latter sued Senator Schall.

"This campaign is not over yet," the senator commented. Senator Shipstead arrived in Brainerd last evening and ate a light lunch of bread and milk. At the table he conversed about his campaign tour. He spoke at St. Cloud and Little Falls yesterday afternoon. He was a guest of the Kiwanis for luncheon at St. Cloud. At Little Falls he spoke at the court house.

In the course of his address at Brainerd last evening he mentioned securing an appropriation of $25,000 from the federal government for experimental work to be carried on at the University of Minnesota school of mines, to make merchantable the low grade ores of the Cuyuna and other Minnesota iron ranges.

"Those who are opposed to my election," said the senator, "know I have a public record of more than 15 years. They have found no fault with that record. They do not claim I have not represented Minnesota well, but they seem to try to convince people I cannot do so in the future. I have never been able to learn on what basis they bring that argument."

"They agree," the senator continued, "I have represented the people in the past but try to insinuate I will not represent the people's will in the future."

"Let us stick to the record," he said. "The record is clear. I stand on that record. It shows the fulfillment of the promises I made to the people of Minnesota six years ago, when I promised them I would give the best that was in me in their service. I am asking the people to re-elect me on that record."

"I stand on that record for re-election," he said. "To be re-elected I have not made and will not make any deals, nor will I hang on to the coat-tails of some other candidate."

The senator discussed economic problems, made so, he said, largely by legislation and the remedy therefore must largely be in legislation. He did not discuss them, he said, from the point of view of party politics.

"So far as being on the 'inside' is concerned," said the senator, "I am on the inside of seven committees, I have more committee assignments than any other man in the senate."

"Those who say I cannot accomplish anything because of my independent position are misleading the people."

"My record of legislation accomplished will compare favorably to that of any man in the senate," said the senator.

"Some say I have not always supported the policies of the president," said Senator Shipstead. "True, in a way. My business has been to express the will of the people of Minnesota."

DEATH POTIONS ALARM ALL OF NEW YORK CITY

GREATEST WAVE OF POISON AL- COHOL DEATHS IN HISTORY OF CITY

MANY OTHER PERSONS SUFFER- ING FROM DRINKING POISON BEVERAGES

New York, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—Thirty-two deaths within 48 hours from poisoned alcohol have brought a series of raids on numerous downtown speak-easies and an order from Mayor Walker for immediate arrest of the salesmen of these death potions.

It is the greatest wave of poison alcohol deaths in the history of the nation's largest city. Only once has the number of poison-alcohol deaths mounted higher during an entire year, and that was in 1920 when 38 persons died from a flood of holiday alcohol.

Many other persons are said to be suffering from having drunk poisoned beverages—in many instances wood alcohol—and the death list probably will increase, city authorities said.

"I insist that those responsible for poison liquor, the distribution of which amounts to homicide and which is more than a violation of the Volstead act, must be apprehended and prosecuted," Mayor Walker told his police heads.

Immediately 20 detectives went to the lower east side and raided nine of the estimated 1,000 speak-easies in a mile-and-a-half area. Thirteen persons were arrested and liquor stocks confiscated. Samples were sent to city chemists for testing.

Other squads will continue their raids through the east side district, where most of the deaths have been reported. Federal authorities will aid and Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran has ordered federal agents to investigate.

Doran was reported to believe that the deaths were from over-indulgence in an inferior grade of moonshine rather than from wood alcohol. Doran said warnings had been given that the real liquor supply in New York was being reduced and that cheap whiskey of home manufacture was replacing it.

However, 11 of the deaths in the past two days were attributed to wood-alcoholic poisoning, and Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, blamed prohibition for the deaths.

"Prohibition is a joke," Norris said. "I invited both presidential candidates to see this terrible experiment in extermination. I sincerely hope they will accept my invitation." The flow of poison liquor thus far has not invaded the gay whoopee section of New York. The fatalities have been confined mostly to the waterfront section and the tenement district of the east side.

force the law. But the president has other duties besides enforcing the law. He recommends legislation to congress. If I had been pledged to support the president I could not have voted for the soldiers' bonus, I could not have voted for an investigation of the department of justice," he said.

The party system was scored by the senator. "Those obedient to the party lash," he said, "vote one way and then another and they are called regular," he said.

Nothing constructive was offered in the way of farm relief. The main idea of the senator appeared to be that his plea for re-election rested on his past performances and that these are a guarantee that he will meet any new situations should he be returned to office.

He mentioned securing a $10,000,000 Mississippi waterways appropriation by working with the republicans and democrats and securing unanimous consent for the bill.

There was a large attendance at U. C. T. hall, filling all seats and many standing. Many, not supporters of Shipstead, went to hear him. He was welcomed to the city by Mayor Frank E. Little, acting in his official capacity as mayor and greeting him as the senior senator of Minnesota.

New York, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—Thirty-two deaths within 48 hours from poisoned alcohol have brought a series of raids on numerous downtown speak-easies and an order from Mayor Walker for immediate arrest of the salesmen of these death potions.

It is the greatest wave of poison alcohol deaths in the history of the nation's largest city. Only once has the number of poison-alcohol deaths mounted higher during an entire year, and that was in 1920 when 38 persons died from a flood of holiday alcohol.

Many other persons are said to be suffering from having drunk poisoned beverages—in many instances wood alcohol—and the death list probably will increase, city authorities said.

"I insist that those responsible for poison liquor, the distribution of which amounts to homicide and which is more than a violation of the Volstead act, must be apprehended and prosecuted," Mayor Walker told his police heads.

Immediately 20 detectives went to the lower east side and raided nine of the estimated 1,000 speak-easies in a mile-and-a-half area. Thirteen persons were arrested and liquor stocks confiscated. Samples were sent to city chemists for testing.

Other squads will continue their raids through the east side district, where most of the deaths have been reported. Federal authorities will aid and Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran has ordered federal agents to investigate.

Doran was reported to believe that the deaths were from over-indulgence in an inferior grade of moonshine rather than from wood alcohol. Doran said warnings had been given that the real liquor supply in New York was being reduced and that cheap whiskey of home manufacture was replacing it.

However, 11 of the deaths in the past two days were attributed to wood-alcoholic poisoning, and Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, blamed prohibition for the deaths.

"Prohibition is a joke," Norris said. "I invited both presidential candidates to see this terrible experiment in extermination. I sincerely hope they will accept my invitation."

The flow of poison liquor thus far has not invaded the gay whoopee section of New York. The fatalities have been confined mostly to the waterfront section and the tenement district of the east side.

force the law. But the president has other duties besides enforcing the law. He recommends legislation to congress. If I had been pledged to support the president I could not have voted for an investigation of the department of justice," he said.

The party system was scored by the senator. "Those obedient to the party lash," he said, "vote one way and then another and they are called regular," he said.

Nothing constructive was offered in the way of farm relief. The main idea of the senator appeared to be that his plea for re-election rested on his past performances and that these are a guarantee that he will meet any new situations should he be returned to office.

He mentioned securing a $10,000,000 Mississippi waterways appropriation by working with the republicans and democrats and securing unanimous consent for the bill.

There was a large attendance at U. C. T. hall, filling all seats and many standing. Many not supporters of Shipstead, went to hear him. He was welcomed to the city by Mayor Frank E. Little, acting in his official capacity as mayor and greeting him as the senior senator of Minnesota.

SHIPSTEAD IS PROUD OF RECORD AND COMMITTEES

GLORIES IN HIS INDEPENDENCE. "HANGING TO NO MAN'S COAT-TAILS"

SAYS HIS RECORD FOR LEGISLATION COMPARES FAVORABLY WITH ANY SENATOR

Senator Henrik Shipstead, when shown a statement that Donald G. Hughes, Minneapolis attorney, had come out for Arthur E. Nelson, because Shipstead "had not declared his stand on prohibition or whom he supported for the presidency," stated that he had no answer to make Mr. Hughes. The senator said he had nothing to say for quotation in the matter. Hughes, it will be remembered, was the attorney of former Senator Magnus Johnson when the latter sued Senator Schall.

"This campaign is not over yet," the senator commented. Senator Shipstead arrived in Brainerd last evening and ate a light lunch of bread and milk. At the table he conversed about his campaign tour. He spoke at St. Cloud and Little Falls yesterday afternoon. He was a guest of the Kiwanis for luncheon at St. Cloud. At Little Falls he spoke at the court house.

In the course of his address at Brainerd last evening he mentioned securing an appropriation of $25,000 from the federal government for experimental work to be carried on at the University of Minnesota school of mines, to make merchantable the low grade ores of the Cuyuna and other Minnesota iron ranges.

"Those who are opposed to my election," said the senator, "know I have a public record of more than 15 years. They have found no fault with that record. They do not claim I have not represented Minnesota well, but they seem to try to convince people I cannot do so in the future. I have never been able to learn on what basis they bring that argument."

"They agree," the senator continued, "I have represented the people in the past but try to insinuate I will not represent the people's will in the future."

"Let us stick to the record," he said. "The record is clear. I stand on that record. It shows the fulfillment of the promises I made to the people of Minnesota six years ago, when I promised them I would give the best that was in me in their service. I am asking the people to re-elect me on that record."

"I stand on that record for re-election," he said. "To be re-elected I have not made and will not make any deals, nor will I hang on to the coat-tails of some other candidate."

The senator discussed economic problems, made so, he said, largely by legislation and the remedy therefore must largely be in legislation. He did not discuss them, he said, from the point of view of party politics.

"So far as being on the 'inside' is concerned," said the senator, "I am on the inside of seven committees. I have more committee assignments than any other man in the senate."

"Those who say I cannot accomplish anything because of my independent position are misleading the people."

"My record of legislation accomplished will compare favorably to that of any man in the senate," said the senator. "Some say I have not always supported the policies of the president," said Senator Shipstead. "True, in a way. My business has been to express the will of the people of Minnesota."

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" Here Tomorrow

No mystery melodrama ever written can quite compare with "The Trial of Mary Dugan" which comes to the Park theatre tomorrow night beginning at 8:15 o'clock. This is not a motion picture.

Imagine, if you can, a mystery drama wherein the curtain plays no part at all. It is always up, even before the audience assembles, and it remains up throughout the development of the story. Nor is it lowered between acts. Imagine, further, if you can, a thrilling mystery unfolded without the age-old aids of dark scenes, pistol shots and stabs in the back. There are no dark scenes, no pistol shots and no stabs in the back, although a knife plays a very vital part in the action and the clearing up of the mystery.

The use of this knife has caused a great deal of discussion. It is used in one of the most unexpected and dramatic twists ever written into a play.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" has to its credit more than a year on Broadway, as well as runs in London, Berlin, Paris, Melbourne, Australia, and other foreign countries. Seats are now selling from 2 to 5 P. M. at the theatre.

Wrecks and Races Caught by Camera

Thrills and excitement of every possible description—almost two hours of it—now flash across the screen of the Lyceum theatre. The picture on display is "The Whip," screen version of the most famous of old Drury Lane melodramas. The play has been filmed faithfully with all the thrills, train wrecks, horse races and auto smashups magnified by the eye of the camera.

HOOVER SAVED GERMAN YOUTH

ST. LOUIS.—A stirring tribute to Hoover's post-war activities on behalf of the suffering people of Germany and Austria is contained in a booklet just published here, prepared by former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of Missouri.

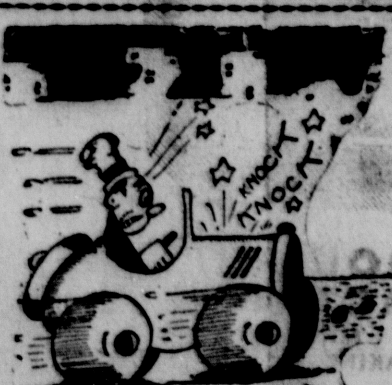

"For eight years in Congress I fought for food relief and the return of alien property to distressed people in Germany and Austria," said Mr. Newton. "I did this not because they were Germans or Austrians but because it was just. I would do the same for the French, the Belgians or the Russians. I believe in a square deal."

"I have personal knowledge of the great service rendered by Herbert Hoover to the suffering people of Central Europe, especially children. Hoover's answer to allied statesmen and others who objected to sending foodstuffs to the famished populations of Germany and Austria was: 'We were never at war with women and children!'"

"When my post-war proposals for sending food to starving Central Europe were up before the Congressional Committee, it was suggested that Hoover, America's food expert, be called. One may imagine my joy and delight as I listened for one hour to the forceful, masterly, unanswerable presentation which Hoover made in favor of relief for the suffering, hungry and starving people."

Colleges Favor Hoover

If college straw votes are indicative of the sentiment of the American people, then Herbert Hoover will go into the White House with an overwhelming popular majority. A straw vote at the Juniata College the other day showed the following results: Hoover, 255; Smith, 39; Will Rogers, 2. The faculty gave Hoover eighteen votes and Smith two.—Harrisburg (Pa.) No Changes

Why is it men resent changes in the arrangement of furniture in a room? Perhaps if the economical side were pointed out to them in regard to the wear on rugs and furniture they would comprehend more quickly than the fact that a change seems good to the housewife who is home so much.

Will your child go to college?

A COLLEGE education is a valuable asset in business and social success.

When the time comes, will you have the money necessary to give your son or daughter the advantages of this important training?

It is estimated that of one thousand children who enter grade schools, only twenty-three graduate from college. Lack of funds is usually the reason.

The easiest way to finance a college course is to begin years in advance. Now, while your child is young, start an educational fund by opening an account with us to increase steadily with regular deposits and compound interest.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" Here Tomorrow

No mystery melodrama ever written can quite compare with "The Trial of Mary Dugan" which comes to the Park theatre tomorrow night beginning at 8:15 o'clock. This is not a motion picture.

Imagine, if you can, a mystery drama wherein the curtain plays no part at all. It is always up, even before the audience assembles, and it remains up throughout the development of the story. Nor is it lowered between acts. Imagine, further, if you can, a thrilling mystery unfolded without the age-old aids of dark scenes, pistol shots and stabs in the dark. There are no dark scenes, no pistol shots and no stabs in the back, although a knife plays a very vital part in the action and the clearing up of the mystery.

The use of this knife has caused a great deal of discussion. It is used in one of the most unexpected and dramatic twists ever written into a play.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" has to its credit more than a year on Broadway, as well as runs in London, Berlin, Paris, Melbourne, Australia, and other foreign countries. Seats are now selling from 2 to 5 P. M. at the theatre.

Wrecks and Races Caught by Camera

Thrills and excitement of every possible description—almost two hours of it—now flash across the screen of the Lyceum theatre. The picture on display is "The Whip," screen version of the most famous of old Drury Lane melodramas. The play has been filmed faithfully with all the thrills, train wrecks, horse races and auto smashups magnified by the eye of the camera.

HOOVER SAVED GERMAN YOUTH

ST. LOUIS.—A stirring tribute to Hoover's post-war activities on behalf of the suffering people of Germany and Austria is contained in a booklet just published here, prepared by former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of Missouri.

"For eight years in Congress I fought for food relief and the return of alien property to distressed people in Germany and Austria," said Mr. Newton. "I did this not because they were Germans or Austrians but because it was just. I would do the same for the French, the Belgians or the Russians. I believe in a square deal."

"I have personal knowledge of the great service rendered by Herbert Hoover to the suffering people of Central Europe, especially children. Hoover's answer to allied statesmen and others who objected to sending foodstuffs to the famished populations of Germany and Austria was: 'We were never at war with women and children!'"

"When my post-war proposals for sending food to starving Central Europe were up before the Congressional Committee, it was suggested that Hoover, America's food expert, be called. One may imagine my joy and delight as I listened for one hour to the forceful, masterly, unanswerable presentation which Hoover made in favor of relief for the suffering, hungry and starving people."

Colleges Favor Hoover

If college straw votes are indicative of the sentiment of the American people, then Herbert Hoover will go into the White House with an overwhelming popular majority. A straw vote at the Juniata College the other day showed the following results: Hoover, 255; Smith, 39; Will Rogers, 2. The faculty gave Hoover eighteen votes and Smith two.—Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph.

No Changes

Why is it men resent changes in the arrangement of furniture in a room? Perhaps if the economical side were pointed out to them in regard to the wear on rugs and furniture they would comprehend more quickly than the fact that a change seems good to the housewife who is home so much.

Will your child go to college?

A COLLEGE education is a valuable asset in business and social success.

When the time comes, will you have the money necessary to give your son or daughter the advantages of this important training?

It is estimated that of one thousand children who enter grade schools, only twenty-three graduate from college. Lack of funds is usually the reason.

The easiest way to finance a college course is to begin years in advance. Now, while your child is young, start an educational fund by opening an account with us to increase steadily with regular deposits and compound interest.

PENNEY SEES MR. HOOVER AS FARMER'S HOPE

Says Smith Fails to Grasp the Situation and Doubts His Competence.

HE REMAINS A DEMOCRAT

But Chain Store Owner Opposes Party Nominee—Calls Secretary Sincere and Competent.

J. C. Penney, president of one of the largest chain store organizations in the country, declares that, although he has been a life-long Democrat, he will support Herbert Hoover for the Presidency.

In his declaration Mr. Penney enthusiastically supports Hoover's stand on farm relief, which, he declares, is a matter of business and not of mere laws.

"The well-being of the country rises above partisan issues," said Mr. Penney in a formal statement, "and, while I shall remain a Democrat in the affairs of my state, which is Florida, and have no intention of becoming a Republican, I have a feeling which amounts to a deep conviction that the opportunity to have Herbert Hoover as President is one that we should take.

"Two very important questions are before us—farm relief and prohibition. In the farm question I have an interest as keen as that of any farmer, for of our stores, which number more than a thousand, a majority are in the farm districts. Their prosperity depends on the prosperity of the farmer. I started my first store in Wyoming, and for years all of our stores were in the Western and Middle Western states.

Knows Farm Problems

"I know that country; I was born and lived in it. I know farming and farm problems. For some years I have given a great deal of time and money to studying ways and means of making the farmer more prosperous. I have a tract of 123,000 acres in Florida, on which more than a hundred farm families are working at problems of production and distribution in a business way under the supervision of a well-rounded staff of agricultural experts. Our farmers are making money.

"I have noted that in sections, such as parts of Wisconsin, where the farmers maintain herds of blooded stock they earn profits, whereas the farmer who has poor stock does just as much work and gets no return. This shows in our store incomes. And so I have a demonstration herd of Guernsey cattle, which I take around the country myself in order to teach the lessons of economical production. We are likewise working on beef cattle and sheep.

"The farm problem is not a new one to me, and I am not in it for amusement. In the light of my experience it seems to me that few men have ever shown so slight a grasp of the situation as did Governor Smith—if his acceptance speech is to be taken as his best effort. His lack of understanding is fundamental. He simply does not know what it is all about, and after giving a few unimportant and misleading figures he simply says that he will try to get someone to help him solve it by law.

Doubts Smith's Confidence

"We have had solutions by law through the years, and we narrowly escaped destruction by law in the McNary-Haugen bill. The farm is a business enterprise and must be brought to that level by the leadership of a man who understands both business and farming. That man is Herbert Hoover. He can do for farming what, as Secretary of Commerce, he has done for business and can put it once and for all on a firm foundation. His proposals are direct, comprehensive and wholly practical. He does not just weep on the farmer's shoulder.

"I am a dry. I am in absolute accord with Hoover's stand on prohibition. It is a noble experiment. Entirely aside from the moral aspects of prohibition, I trace to it much of our national prosperity. Governor Smith's proposals are entitled to weight, but I am wholly against them. I will not vote for a wet.

"In short, while I do not doubt Governor Smith's sincerity in his various pleas for election, I more than doubt his competence to grapple with our national problems. I doubt neither Hoover's sincerity nor his competence. And therefore I am going to do all that lies in my power to help towards his election."

LEVINE'S AIRPLANE, COLUMBIA, MAY TAKE OFF SOON

New York, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—Charles A. Levine's airplane, the Columbia, may take off on its second trans-Atlantic flight tomorrow.

Roger Q. Williams and Pietro Bonelli, who severed their connection with Cesare Sabelli's proposed flight in the Roma, said that the reconditioned Columbia stood ready at Roosevelt field for the flight, and that an attempt would be made to start at dawn for Rome.

Williams expects to pilot the plane, with Bonelli acting as navigator. It was not believed that Levine would accompany the fliers.

Borah Pays Tribute

Describing Herbert Hoover as "one of the great administrators of all times," Senator William E. Borah of Idaho declared that "the issues of this campaign are every day problems, such as farm relief, cheaper transportation, development of waterways, a public utilities policy, conservation of electric power, and the maintenance of our Constitution as the people had written it."

A FAIR QUESTION

THERE are in the city of A, two public utility companies, one selling gas and the other electricity, says the Nation's Business Magazine. Each is well managed, fairly capitalized and each has a long record of adequate dividends. The community does not feel that it is victimized by the rates for gas or electricity and the workers, white-collared and overalled, are adequately paid.

A merger of the two companies is decided upon and it is found that there will be a saving of $1,000,000 a year.

Query: Who is entitled to the million?

The stockholders say in effect:

"We are. We own the company. Whatever it makes or saves belongs to us. We risked our money on the beginning and should have the reward now. Raise the dividends!"

The management says:

"We should have it in increased salaries. It was our intelligence and foresight which brought together these companies. We worked out the details by which we made the savings possible. Raise our salaries."

"We should have the million. Ours is the labor that really make them possible. Raise wages!"

The users of gas and electricity say:

"Give it to us. The companies exist by our sufferance. They are public utilities, licensed, and all they make above the fair return they now enjoy should come to us."

What is the answer?

THE RADIO CLUB

ONE of the newest organizations in the city is the Radio club. Primarily formed to eliminate local interference, its membership of 150 has already taken steps to bring this about.

The first thing done was to purchase a "trouble shooter" outfit. This machine cost close to $50 and has given satisfaction wherever used. It is the type extensively used in the cities and is directed by two men. One drives the car carrying the instrument and the other watches the set to see where the indicator points to trouble.

The club shows a spirit of cooperation and general helpfulness. It antagonizes no interests, but works with the water and light board, the radio dealers, and the users of radio sets.

A movement is on to increase the membership and to gain accurate figures of the number of radio owners in the city, a census is now being taken by the club. It is believed there are 700 radio owners in the city. The fee for membership in the club is only $1 a year.

Joining hands with the club in seeking to perfect radio reception are the technical and experienced experts of the power company, water and light board and local telephone company. Many of these men are radio owners.

The club will receive notice of interference, make a record of same and do what it can to eliminate the trouble.

CHILDREN HAVE RIGHT TO GET DIRTY

SOMEBODY issued a bill of rights for the children down at St. Paul and it has met with favor, so far as the kids are concerned. We do not know how some of the parents feel about it, but we believe that at a certain age, childhood possesses the inalienable right to make mud pies, to play in a sand pile and to track muddy feet across the kitchen floor.

The child immaculately clean and stiff in starched clothes is the butt of attack by the more liberally inclined juvenile majority. Every mother knows that a child, noiseless and endowed with shock absorbers, must be sick or inclined to become a real angel.

Children inherit the right to get dirty, Dr. H. G. Hengstler told 250 parents who attend a meeting of the Child Psychology Study circle at the Groveland Park school in St. Paul last week.

"Let the children root," Dr. Hengstler said. "It is their right to get dirty. There is too much tendency at present to pet and coddle them, too much dressing up. Pampering is bad for them."

"The mental, moral and physical patterns of the grown person result from heredity and childhood training. To have a pleasing personality children must be healthy, honest, trustworthy and have self-control."

GOV. SMITH'S TRIP CONVINCES THE NATION WE NEED HOOVER

GOVERNOR SMITH'S tour of the West, his first venture into politics of more than local importance, has been a distinct gain for the Republican ticket.

Even from Democratic sources come admissions that the Governor hurt his cause during his visit to the farm states. He simply didn't "take." The spell of grandeur which was cast about him while he remained in New York disappeared as the tour progressed. The most luxurious campaign special ever put on wheels failed to hide the fact that the Governor does not understand the West and the West does not understand him. The Democratic nominee demonstrated that he is not nationally-minded, that he has no grasp of the problems which concern the United States as a whole.

On the outstanding problem of the day—farm relief—he is still floundering. The West was intensely interested in knowing what he would have to say about it, especially since he had admitted two years ago that "I really can't think of any way of helping the farmers." He hasn't improved his position a great deal since then. In his speech at Omaha he made a few covert gestures at embracing the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill, but he ended with an unilluminating statement that after his election he would "call a conference." As Senator Borah remarked, if the farmer has to wait for that event to happen it will be a tremendously long time before the farm problem is solved.

In contrast to this vague and obscure position, Mr. Hoover has proclaimed a definite and concrete program for agriculture. It has won the approval of those who are most interested in the problem and who are most competent to judge. It has brought Mr. Hoover messages of congratulation from the men who have led the farm fight for years past. Moreover, the record of the Republican Administration in behalf of the farmer is something that cannot be lightly put aside.

The farmers, like a great many other people in all parts of the nation, are fully convinced that the Governor is wholly unsound on the vital tariff issue. His reference in his acceptance speech to the Underwood tariff as his ideal is something that a lot of Democrats would like to forget, and would like to have the farmers forget. The Underwood tariff included most of the products of our agriculture on the free list, and the farmers and workers too were all but ruined by its operation. Had it not been for the war that ruination would have been complete and final. The progress which agriculture has made since the war has been due in a large measure to the protection which has been granted to farm products by the Fordney-McCumber tariff, a Republican measure.

The Underwood tariff was no less disastrous in its effect on the workers. Twice during the duration of the Democratic schedules there was a reduction of $100,000,000 a week in the country's payroll. The damage did not stop there. The loss of this vast sum contributed still further to the demoralization of the farmers' domestic market and restricted to a marked degree the activity of our manufacturers.

The personalities of the candidates is important, but the party principles which affect the well-being of the nation are more important by far. If the United States wants to continue to be well-fed, well housed and well clothed, it must vote for the men who believe in the principles which make that prosperity possible. In other words, it must elect Herbert Hoover and Senator Curtis.

GOV. CHRISTIANSON'S PLAN

FIGURES talk, and we believe that the saving of practically $1.50 for every man, woman and child in the state of Minnesota in the year ending June 30, 1928, as compared with the one ending June 30, 1926, is a very worthy accomplishment on the part of the Big Three.—Mapleton Enterprise.

An Invitation to Hoover Supporters

A sincere, nation-wide effort is being made to get away from even the implication of an obligation which may be associated with the solicitation of large sums of money for discharging the expenses of a Presidential campaign. There has for many years been a growing feeling that the holder of the highest office within the gift of the Republic should owe his position solely and singly to the people whom he is chosen to serve. This sentiment has crystallized this year in the effort sponsored by the National Central Committee known as the Hoover Popular Subscription Fund, of which, in this state, J. F. Gould is director, working in conjunction with Hon. Ray Kern of Lake Elmo as chairman and Rudolph Lee of Long Prairie as Treasurer.

This organization has sought to create in every county of the state a working force to bring before the people an invitation to contribute $1 to the national campaign in furtherance of the ideal here briefly stated. That canvass has been made or is in progress with more or less intensity throughout the state, but even where it is most energetically prosecuted great numbers of Hoover supporters will be missed. To those who have not been approached this article is directed and it is earnestly hoped that they will take it as a personal invitation to make the contribution suggested, or a larger or smaller amount, as they may desire, for the purpose of electing a truly people's candidate for President.

Fill out the coupon below fully and plainly so the National Committee may return to you a receipt by mail, enclose it with your check or currency and leave at the office of this newspaper or send direct by mail to J. F. Gould, 332 West Hotel, Minneapolis, Minn.

Consider the diplodocus

The diplodocus was the most gigantic animal that ever lived. It was eighty-five feet long and weighed scores of tons. Yet despite its tremendous bulk it had a brain the size of an English walnut.

Millions of years ago the diplodocus flourished. But when conditions changed, it was unable to adapt itself to a new existence. Other animals, less strong, but more intelligent, invaded its domain. And so, with the unceasing march of progress, its race died out and vanished.

It is just as necessary today as it was in the Upper Jurassic period to keep abreast of the times. Conditions are changing under our very eyes. New inventions, new products are constantly being brought forward to make life easier and happier. If we do not take advantage of them, we fall behind the procession.

A FAIR QUESTION

THERE are in the city of A, two public utility companies, one selling gas and the other electricity, says the Nation's Business Magazine. Each is well managed, fairly capitalized and each has a long record of adequate dividends. The community does not feel that it is victimized by the rates for gas or electricity and the workers, white-collared and overalled, are adequately paid.

A merger of the two companies is decided upon and it is found that there will be a saving of $1,000,000 a year.

Query: Who is entitled to the million?

The stockholders say in effect:

"We are. We own the company. Whatever it makes or saves belongs to us. We risked our money on the beginning and should have the reward now. Raise the dividends!"

The management says:

"We should have it in increased salaries. It was our intelligence and foresight which brought together these companies. We worked out the details by which we made the savings possible. Raise our salaries."

"We should have the million. Ours is the labor that really make them possible. Raise wages!"

The users of gas and electricity say:

"Give it to us. The companies exist by our sufferance. They are public utilities, licensed, and all they make above the fair return they now enjoy should come to us."

What is the answer?

THE RADIO CLUB

ONE of the newest organizations in the city is the Radio club. Primarily formed to eliminate local interference, its membership of 150 has already taken steps to bring this about.

The first thing done was to purchase a "trouble shooter" outfit. This machine cost close to $50 and has given satisfaction wherever used. It is the type extensively used in the cities and is directed by two men. One drives the car carrying the instrument and the other watches the set to see where the indicator points to trouble.

The club shows a spirit of cooperation and general helpfulness. It antagonizes no interests, but works with the water and light board, the radio dealers, and the users of radio sets.

A movement is on to increase the membership and to gain accurate figures of the number of radio owners in the city, a census is now being taken by the club. It is believed there are 700 radio owners in the city. The fee for membership in the club is only $1 a year.

Joining hands with the club in seeking to perfect radio reception are the technical and experienced experts of the power company, water and light board and local telephone company. Many of these men are radio owners.

The club will receive notice of interference, make a record of same and do what it can to eliminate the trouble.

CHILDREN HAVE RIGHT TO GET DIRTY

SOMEbody issued a bill of rights for the children down at St. Paul and it has met with favor, so far as the kids are concerned. We do not know how some of the parents feel about it, but we believe that at a certain age, childhood possesses the inalienable right to make mud pies, to play in a sand pile and to track muddy feet across the kitchen floor.

The child immaculately clean and stiff in starched clothes is the butt of attack by the more liberally inclined juvenile majority. Every mother knows that a child, noiseless and endowed with shock absorbers, must be sick or inclined to become a real angel.

Children inherit the right to get dirty, Dr. H. G. Hengstler told 250 parents who attend a meeting of the Child Psychology Study circle at the Groveland Park school in St. Paul last week.

"Let the children root," Dr. Hengstler said. "It is their right to get dirty. There is too much tendency at present to pet and coddle them, too much dressing up. Pampering is bad for them."

"The mental, moral and physical patterns of the grown person result from heredity and childhood training. To have a pleasing personality children must be healthy, honest, trustworthy and have self-control."

GOV. SMITH'S TRIP CONVINCES THE NATION WE NEED HOOVER

GOVERNOR SMITH's tour of the West, his first venture into politics of more than local importance, has been a distinct gain for the Republican ticket.

Even from Democratic sources come admissions that the Governor hurt his cause during his visit to the farm states. He simply didn't "take." The spell of grandeur which was cast about him while he remained in New York disappeared as the tour progressed. The most luxurious campaign special ever put on wheels failed to hide the fact that the Governor does not understand the West and the West does not understand him. The Democratic nominee demonstrated that he is not nationally-minded, that he has no grasp of the problems which concern the United States as a whole.

On the outstanding problem of the day—farm relief—he is still floundering. The West was intensely interested in knowing what he would have to say about it, especially since he had admitted two years ago that "I really can't think of any way of helping the farmers." He hasn't improved his position a great deal since then. In his speech at Omaha he made a few covert gestures at embracing the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill, but he ended with an unilluminating statement that after his election he would "call a conference." As Senator Borah remarked, if the farmer has to wait for that event to happen it will be a tremendously long time before the farm problem is solved.

In contrast to this vague and obscure position, Mr. Hoover has proclaimed a definite and concrete program for agriculture. It has won the approval of those who are most interested in the problem and who are most competent to judge. It has brought Mr. Hoover messages of congratulation from the men who have led the farm fight for years past. Moreover, the record of the Republican Administration in behalf of the farmer is something that cannot be lightly put aside.

The farmers, like a great many other people in all parts of the nation, are fully convinced that the Governor is wholly unsound on the vital tariff issue. His reference in his acceptance speech to the Underwood tariff as his ideal is something that a lot of Democrats would like to forget, and would like to have the farmers forget. The Underwood tariff included most of the products of our agriculture on the free list, and the farmers and workers too were all but ruined by its operation. Had it not been for the war that ruination would have been complete and final. The progress which agriculture has made since the war has been due in a large measure to the protection which has been granted to farm products by the Fordney-McCumber tariff, a Republican measure.

The Underwood tariff was no less disastrous in its effect on the workers. Twice during the duration of the Democratic schedules there was a reduction of $100,000,000 a week in the country's payroll. The damage did not stop there. The loss of this vast sum contributed still further to the demoralization of the farmers' domestic market and restricted to a marked degree the activity of our manufacturers.

The personalities of the candidates is important, but the party principles which affect the well-being of the nation are more important by far. If the United States wants to continue to be well-fed, well housed and well clothed, it must vote for the men who believe in the principles which make that prosperity possible. THE CARDINALS FACE MUSIC TODAY WITH HEAVY HEARTS

ONLY A FAINT HOPE REVIVED IN ST. LOUIS TEAM

THE SERIES MAY BE OVER BEFORE NIGHTFALL, A SORRY SHOW

NEW YORK YANKEES CHAFING OVER DELAY IMPOSED BY RAIN

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9. — With heavy hearts and only the faint semblance of fresh hope engendered by an unexpected day of rest, the St. Louis Cardinals face the music again today, the ringing music of Yankee bats, the hum of Waite Hoyt's fast ball, the doleful clamor of cowbells and fish horns sounding well-meant encouragement from the stands and bleachers of Sportsman's Park.

It may be all over before nightfall, this rather sorry world series of 1928.

The New York Yankees, chafing under the delay imposed by rain, were eager to have it over. They knew they had won another world's championship, to all intents and purposes, and they were in no mood to drag out the proceedings. Waite Hoyt, for one, was in a hurry to get back to Brooklyn to study for his examinations for the degree of "licensed mortician, first class," so the Cardinals could expect no favors from him.

St. Louis' hopes of escaping a white-washing such as their predecessors, the Pittsburgh Pirates, received last year, rested upon the shoulders of Willie Sherdel, the diminutive southpaw who pitched so well in the opening game at New York.

The Cardinals seemed to have perked up a bit during the twenty-four hour lay-off which followed their disastrous defeat on Sunday. But they still were a sad example of a championship ball club.

There were no indications overnight that Bill McKechnie would institute a drastic shake-up of his team for what may be the final game. The Red Birds' manager has been urged to put Watty Holm at third, Tommy Thevenow at short and Ray Blades in right field in an effort to find a winning combination.

The probable-line of the clubs for the fourth game is:

Yankees—Paschal, cf.; Koenig, ss.; Ruth, lf.; Gehrig, 1b.; Meusel, rf.; Lazzeri, 2b.; Dugan, 3b.; Bengough c.; Hoyt p.

Cardinals—Douthitt cf.; High, 3b.; Frisch, 2b.; Bottomley, 1b.; Hefey, lf.; Harper, rf.; Wilson, c.; Maranville, ss.; Sherdel p.

Umpires—Pfirman at the plate; Owens at 1st; Rigler at second; and McGowan at third.

It will be noticed that Babe Ruth plays left field instead of right field, at Sportsman's Park. Bob Meusel is the sun-flied of the Yankee outfield.

Miller Huggins, who has been sparing Tony Lazzeri all he can, still wants the Italian in there at second base, despite his lame arm. Mark Koenig, has made two or three bobbles already, but does better with Tony alongside than when eager little Leo Durocher plays second.

Sam Bredon, who incidentally has not sold the Cardinals and who says he wouldn't do so for $5,000,000 was hopeful of a good turnout of fans today, despite the defeat sustained by the National League champions Sunday. St. Louis fans are just as loyal as the fans of any other city—which is indeed damning with faint praise.

Foul, strike one. Ball two, outside. Maranville stole second. Ball three, high and inside. Strike two, called. Sherdel struck out, swinging at a bad one. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

Hoyt registered his seventh strike out of the game when he fanned Sherdel. The Yank pitcher got out of a hole in this inning.

SEVENTH INNING

YANKEES—Koenig up. Strike one, called. Ball one, inside. Koenig flied to Maranville, who backed up and took the ball in his own vest pocket fashion. Ruth up. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Sherdel tried to slip over a third strike on the Babe with a quick return but Umpire Pfirman refused to allow it. The Cards gathered around, protesting vigorously and the game was delayed while all four umpires told them they were wrong. Ruth stood by clapping his hands in mock applause. Sherdel had fooled the Babe with two slow floaters which cut the plate. His third pitch, however, was a fast one which did not count. Ball one, outside. Ball two, low and outside. Ruth hit another home run clear over the right field bleachers and outside the park. He laughed at the Cards as he rounded the bases while the fans booed angrily. Gehrig up. Ball one, low and outside. Gehrig followed with another home run, which bounded on top of the right field covered pavilion. Meusel up. Ball one, inside. Foul, strike one. Ball two, outside. Foul, strike two. Foul. Meusel singled to left, a line drive between High and Maranville. Lazzeri up. Alexander warmed up in the bull pen for St. Louis. Sherdel was taken from the box. Frisch and McKechnie had an argument with Pfirman about the color of the ball. Alexander came strolling in from the bull pen and sauntered into the box for St. Louis. Lazzeri up. Ball one, low and wide. Lazzeri doubled to left field, Meusel stopping at third. Hefey lost the ball in the sun and Orsatti had to go into his territory to try for the catch. Robertson batting for Dugan, up. Ball one, low. Ball two, low. Robertson hit a roller to Frisch, scoring Meusel and sending Lazzeri to third and was himself safe at first when Frisch threw to the plate. It was a fielder's choice. Combs went to bat for Bengough. Ball one, outside. Foul, strike one. Ball two, inside. Ball three, high. Strike two, called. Combs flied to Harper, had to go to the wall for the catch. Lazzeri scoring after the catch, Robertson holding first. Hoyt up. Ball one, low. Strike one, swung. Foul, strike two. Foul. Hoyt out, Alexander to Bottomley. FOUR RUNS, FOUR HITS, NO ERRORS.

The break of the game came when the umpires refused to allow Sherdel to sneak a third strike over on Babe Ruth. The Babe followed with a homer and started the disaster. The fans threw bottles at the Babe when he went out to play left field.

CARDINALS—Collins went behind the bat for the Yanks. Durocher to third in place of Lazzeri and Durst to center in place of Paschal and Robertson to third for Dugan. Orsatti up. Strike one, swung. Ball one, inside. Orsatti out on a pop foul fly to Collins. High up. Ball one, wide. High flied to Ruth, an easy chance for the Babe who kidded the fans. Frisch up. Ball one, outside. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Foul. Frisch flied out to Gehrig. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING

YANKEES—Durst up. Foul, strike one. Ball one, low. Ball two, outside. Strike two, called. Durst added a home run to the total by driving the ball out among the fans in the right field bleachers. Koenig up. Ball one, outside. Koenig out, Bottomley unassisted, on a high bouncer which Jim had to jump for. Ruth up. Strike one, called. Ruth hit his third homer of the game over the top of the right field pavilion, tying his own world record with three homers in a world series game made here in 1926. Gehrig up. Strike one, swung. Alexander threw out Gehrig. Meusel up. Ball one, wide. Ball two, outside. Strike one, swung. Strike two, swung. Ball three, outside. Meusel struck out, swinging at a low one. TWO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

Ruth was booed by the fans when he went to the plate but they were with him when he hit that third homer and he was cheered this time when he went to his place in left field.

CARDS—Bottomley up. Strike one, called. Bottomley lifted a high foul into the left field stands for his second strike. Ball one, inside. Ball two, low. Bottomley fanned, swinging hard at a pitch which was outside and wide. Hefey up. Strike one, swung. Ball one, outside. Hefey lined down to short which was too hot for Koenig to handle and beat it out. Harper up. Harper hit into a double play, Koenig to Gehrig. The Yank shortstop stepped on second, forcing Hefey and catching Harper by an eyelash. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

NINTH INNING

YANKS—Durocher up. Strike one, called. Ball one, inside. Strike two, called. Foul. Foul. Ball two, outside. Foul, strike one. Ball two, inside. Ball three, high. Strike two, called. BOOSTS HOPES OF DOC SPEARS' GOPHER MACHINE

WILL STRENGTHEN MINNESOTA IN LINEUP AGAINST PURDUE

BRINGS WAGERING ON GAME TO AN EVEN BASIS NOW

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The return to scrimmage of Captain George Gibson, guard, boosted the hopes of Coach Doc Spears' Gopher football machine Monday only to have them tremble at their peak with the announcement that Donald Knoerr, fullback, may be ineligible for the remainder of the season.

Gibson's presence in the lineup against Purdue Saturday would strengthen the Minnesota line to bring the wagering on the game to an even basis. The only glaring weakness displayed by the Spear machine last week against Creighton was at the guards and tackles. No serious injuries were reported after the Creighton clash and the Gophers will be full strength against the Bollermakers. First string men were for the most part excluded from Monday's workout with a number of candidates who showed up well last week taking their places.

The backfield selected to oppose the freshmen and B teams last night consisted of Westphal at fullback, Bardwell at quarter and Westin and Pharrmer at the halves. That combination is expected to furnish first reserve strength to Kirk, Brockmeir, Hovde and Nagurski.

one, inside. Ball two, outside. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Collins doubled to center field, a pop fly which Orsatti lost in the sun. Hoyt up. Hoyt flied to Orsatti. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

CARDS—Smith up. Ball one, outside. Ball two, outside. Ball three, outside. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Smith singled off the right field wall. Martin ran for Smith. Maranville up. Martin stole second unmolested. Ball one. Ball two, inside. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Maranville flied to Koenig, Martin holding second. Holm, batting for Alexander, up. Martin stole third base. Holm was thrown out, Hoyt to Gehrig. Martin scored on throw to first. Orsatti singled over second. High up. High singled to left. Orsatti stopping at second. Frisch up. Frisch fouled out to Ruth. ONE RUN, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

THE CARDINALS FACE MUSIC TODAY WITH HEAVY HEARTS

ONLY A FAINT HOPE REVIVED IN ST. LOUIS TEAM

THE SERIES MAY BE OVER BEFORE NIGHTFALL, A SORRY SHOW

NEW YORK YANKEES CHAFING OVER DELAY IMPOSED BY RAIN

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9. — With heavy hearts and only the faint semblance of fresh hope engendered by an unexpected day of rest, the St. Louis Cardinals face the music again today, the ringing music of Yankee bats, the hum of Waite Hoyt's fast ball, the doleful clamor of cowbells and fish horns sounding well-meant encouragement from the stands and bleachers of Sportsman's Park.

It may be all over before nightfall, this rather sorry world series of 1928.

The New York Yankees, chafing under the delay imposed by rain, were eager to have it over. They knew they had won another world's championship, to all intents and purposes, and they were in no mood to drag out the proceedings. Waite Hoyt, for one, was in a hurry to get back to Brooklyn to study for his examinations for the degree of "licensed mortician, first class," so the Cardinals could expect no favors from him.

St. Louis' hopes of escaping a white-washing such as their predecessors, the Pittsburgh Pirates, received last year, rested upon the shoulders of Willie Sherdel, the diminutive southpaw who pitched so well in the opening game at New York.

The Cardinals seemed to have perked up a bit during the twenty-four hour lay-off which followed their disastrous defeat on Sunday. But they still were a sad example of a championship ball club.

There were no indications overnight that Bill McKechnie would institute a drastic shake-up of his team for what may be the final game. The Red Birds' manager has been urged to put Watty Holm at third, Tommy Thevenow at short and Ray Blades in right field in an effort to find a winning combination.

The probable-line of the clubs for the fourth game is:

Yankees—Paschal, cf.; Koenig, ss.; Ruth, lf.; Gehrig, 1b.; Meusel, rf.; Lazzeri, 2b.; Dugan, 3b.; Bengough, c.; Hoyt, p.

Cardinals—Douthit, cf.; High, 3b.; Frisch, 2b.; Bottomley, 1b.; Hafey, lf.; Harper, rf.; Wilson, c.; Maranville, ss.; Sherdel, p.

Umpires—Pfirman at the plate; Owens at first; Rigler at second; and McGowan at third.

It will be noticed that Babe Ruth plays left field instead of right field, at Sportsman's Park. Bob Meusel is the sun-felder of the Yankee outfield.

Miller Huggins, who has been sparing Tony Lazzeri all he can, still wants the Italian in there at second base, despite his lame arm. Mark Koenig, has made two or three bobbles already, but does better with Tony alongside than when eager little Leo Durocher plays second.

Sam Breadon, who incidentally has not sold the Cardinals and who says he wouldn't do so for $5,000,000 was hopeful of a good turnout of fans today, despite the defeat sustained by the National League champions Sunday. St. Louis fans are just as loyal as the fans of any other city—which is indeed damning with faint praise.

It was an error for Koenig. Sherdel up. Sherdel flied to Paschal, Maranville holding second. Orsatti up. Hoyt threw to second trying to catch the Rabbit, but there was no one there and Maranville kept on the way home, sliding. It was an error for Hoyt. Orsatti fanned, swinging. ONE RUN, ONE HIT, TWO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING

YANKEES—Hoyt up. Strike one, swung. Strike two, swung. Ball one, high. Hoyt singled to right. Paschal up. Paschal singled to center. Hoyt stopping at second. It was a line drive in front of Orsatti which he chose to play safely. Koenig up. Ball one, inside. Ball two, low. Koenig popped to Frisch, the runners holding their bases. Ruth up. Ruth out, Bottomley unassisted, the other runners advancing. It was an easy tap right to the first baseman. Gehrig up. Ball one, wide. Gehrig was purposely walked, filling the bases. Meusel up. Ball one, wide. Meusel forced Gehrig at second, Maranville to Frisch. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

CARDINALS—High up. Ball one, outside. Strike one, swung. High flied to Paschal, an easy chance in short center. Frisch up. Ball one, inside. Ball two, high. Ball three, outside. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Frisch out, Hoyt to Gehrig. Frankie hit an easy one to the Yank pitcher. Bottomley up. Ball one, high. Ball two, outside. Strike one, called. Foul, strike two.

Foul. Bottomley called out on strikes, the last one being a slow curve. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING

YANKEES—Lazzeri up. Strike one, called. Ball one, inside. Ball two, inside. Ball three, inside. Lazzeri singled to left. Dugan up. Foul, strike one. Ball one, inside. Dugan beat out an infield roller in front of Frisch. Lazzeri stopped at second. Bengough up. Foul, strike one. It was an attempted bunt, with the Yank runners already at their destinations. Bengough popped to Bottomley on a second attempted bunt. Hoyt up. Strike one, called. Sherdel made a gesture at throwing to second to catch Lazzeri but there was no one there. Hoyt went over to the Yank dugout for a new bat and orders as to what to do. Strike one, called. Lazzeri stole third on the pitch. Dugan held first. Ball one, outside. Hoyt raised a foul to Bottomley back of first base, the Yank runners holding their bases. Paschal up. Sherdel and Smith conferred and Frisch came running in to tell them what to do. Ball one, outside. Paschal raised a high fly to Orsatti who made a great running catch in left center. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

The Cards' pitcher got himself out of a hole in excellent fashion, helped out by Orsatti's great running catch. CARDINALS—Hafey up. Foul, strike one. Strike two, called. Hafey fanned, swinging at the third one. Harper up. Ball one, outside. Ball two, wide. Ball three, inside. Strike one, called. Foul, strike two. Harper walked the last pitch being low and inside. Smith up. Strike one, called. Ball one, outside. Smith raised a high fly to Lazzeri, Harper holding first. It was an easy chance for the Yank second baseman, Maranville up. Ball one, inside. Strike one, called. Maranville singled to center, sending Harper to third. Sherdel up. Ball one, low. Foul, strike one. Ball two, outside. Maranville stole second. Ball three, high and inside. Strike two, called. Sherdel struck out, swinging at a bad one. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

Hoyt registered his seventh strike out of the game when he fanned Sherdel. The Yank pitcher got out of a hole in this inning.

SEVENTH INNING

YANKEES—Koenig up. Strike one, called. Ball one, inside. Koenig flied to Maranville, who backed up and took the ball in his own vest pocket fashion. Ruth up. Strike one, called. Strike two, called. Sherdel tried to slip over a third strike on the Babe with a quick return but Umpire Pfirman refused to allow it. The Cards gathered around, protesting vigorously and the game was delayed while all four umpires told them they were wrong. Ruth stood by clapping his hands in mock applause. Sherdel had fooled the Babe with two slow floaters which cut the plate. His third pitch, however, was a fast one which did not count. Ball one, outside. Ball two, low and outside. Ruth hit another home run clear over the right field bleachers and outside the park. He laughed at the Cards as he rounded the bases while the fans booed angrily. Gehrig up. Ball one, low and outside. Gehrig followed with another home run, which bounded on top of the right field covered pavilion. Meusel up. Ball one, inside. Foul, strike one. Ball two, outside. Foul, strike two. Foul. Meusel singled to left, a line drive between High and Maranville. Lazzeri up. Alexander warmed up in the bull pen for St. Louis. Sherdel was taken from the box. Frisch and McKechnie had an argument with Pfirman about the color of the ball. Alexander came

BOOSTS HOPES OF DOC SPEARS' GOPHER MACHINE

WILL STRENGTHEN MINNESOTA IN LINEUP AGAINST PURDUE

BRINGS WAGERING ON GAME TO AN EVEN BASIS NOW

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The return to scrimmage of Captain George Gibson, guard, boosted the hopes of Coach Doc Spears' Gopher football machine Monday only to have them tremble at their peak with the announcement that Donald Knoerr, fullback, may be ineligible for the remainder of the season.

Gibson's presence in the lineup against Purdue Saturday would strengthen the Minnesota line to bring the wagering on the game to an even basis. The only glaring weakness displayed by the Spear machine last week against Creighton was at the guards and tackles.

No serious injuries were reported after the Creighton clash and the Gophers will be full strength against the Bollermakers. First string men were for the most part excluded from Monday's workout with a number of candidates who showed up well last week taking their places.

The backfield selected to oppose the freshmen and B teams last night consisted of Westphal at fullback, Bardwell at quarter and Westin and Pharnar at the halves. That combination is expected to furnish first reserve strength to Kirk, Brockmeir, Hovde and Nagurski.

13 ARRESTS MADE IN NEW BEDFORD TODAY

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Thirteen arrests were made here today when 35 policemen descended upon the south end headquarters of the so-called racial textile committee.

It was this committee which opposed the ending of the New Bedford textile strike last Saturday and subsequently threatened to meet the police "blow for blow."

BRAINERD GRIDDERS DEFEAT DOWN RIVER RIVALS BY 7-0

GABIOU SCORES TOUCHDOWN ON AN OFF TACKLE PLAY

The B. H. S. football team defeated the Little Falls gridders at the Sixth street grounds Friday afternoon by a count of 7-0. The down river rivals presented a team which showed great improvement over the one of last year and although unable to score, they put up a strong fight throughout the entire game.

Brainerd won the toss and Captain Fuller decided to defend the south goal. Hautala kicked off to Little Falls, the ball being returned about ten yards. Little Falls failed to gain and punted. Dybvik caught the punt, and, aided by some excellent blocking, returned the ball 40 yards. Brainerd made a first down by plays through the line, but the Little Falls defense tightened and Brainerd lost the ball on downs. Both teams found it hard to gain the necessary ground and they exchanged punts, Brainerd getting the better of the trade. Little Falls put the ball in play on their own 5-yard line. Little Falls again punted and by some excellent running, Dybvik returned the ball to the ten yard line.

On the next play Gabiou took the ball over for the only touchdown of the game. Guin made the extra point on a place kick. Brainerd again kicked off to Little Falls, the latter failing to gain, and punted. A pass, Gabiou to Goedderz, netted 20 yards. Goedderz was injured on the play and Guin went to right end, Swanson going into the halfback position. Brainerd failed to gain and the quarter ended with the ball in the possession of Little Falls.

At the start of the second quarter Little Falls made a first down. On the next play they were penalized 5 yards for offside and they punted. Dybvik returned the punt 15 yards. Aided by a 5 yard penalty, Brainerd made a first down. On the next play Brainerd failed to make 10 yards and punted. Little Falls started a drive down the field, making two first downs. Little Falls tried a pass but Dybvik interrupted, ending the drive. Geist was substituted for Paine at left tackle. An exchange of punts was made as the half ended.

At the start of the second half, Brainerd kicked off, Little Falls returning to the middle of the field. As the result of excellent interference Little Falls made two first downs. Brainerd retaliated and also made two first downs, the first as the result of a pass, Gabiou to Swanson, and the second by an end run by Gabiou, who made about 15 yards. During the last minutes of the quarter, Little Falls made a desperate effort to score, bringing the ball down to Brainerd's five-yard line.

Brainerd, fighting in the shadow of its own goal posts, made a desperate effort and stemmed the advance of the down river team. Larson was substituted for Foster and Wise went in for Dybvik to bolster up the Brainerd team. Little Falls lost the ball on downs and Brainerd immediately punted out of danger. Little Falls again made two first downs by off tackle plays. Brainerd got the ball on downs and started a final rally. Gabiou made 25 yards by a jaunt around the end, making it first down. Gabiou again took the ball, this time gaining 20 yards. A pass, Gabiou to Guin, was complete, gaining several yards just as the game ended.

Brainerd outplayed Little Falls during the first quarter, but during the last three the teams fought on even terms. The teams fought and were equal on the number of first downs but Brainerd showed a stronger aerial attack, making three first downs by passes while Little Falls failed to make any.

Line-ups:
Brainerd—Lammon, le; Paine, lt; Abrahamson, lg; Hautala, c; Foster, rg; Garvey, rt; Goedderz, re; Dybvik, qb; Gabiou, lb; Guin, rh; Fuller, sb.

Substitutes—Guin for Goedderz, Swanson for Guin, Geist for Paine, Larson for Foster, Wise for Dybvik.
Little Falls—Gierock, le; Mattson, lt; Savage, lg; Riddle, c; Proper, rg; Dominick, rt; Ring, re; Foster, qb; Purdy, lb; Connel, rh; Hall, sb.

Referee—Dennerly, Aitkin.

HUMOR

Mistress: Have you given the goldfish any water yet?

Maid: No, ma'am, they ain't finished the water I gave them yesterday yet.

YE EDITOR

We are pleased to note that the attendance at the Little Falls game was quite a bit larger than that at the Milaca tilt two weeks ago. The beautiful Indian summer day, not too warm, not too cold, seemed to call the students, and a large number responded.

But the warm weather seemed also to dampen their ardor. In spite of the gallant efforts of Edythe Titus to congregate yelling fell rather flat. Just as the girls, under Edythe's leading, lit into a yell, all the deep-voiced males in the vicinity seemed to move to another place on the sidelines; and when it came to the snake-dance at the half, it seemed to be composed entirely of girls.

C'mon, fellas, when Mr. Kasch's warriors line up against Staples Friday afternoon, let's cooperate with Edythe and show 'em we have lots of school spirit and pep, and make some real noise.

MR. COBB TALKS TO HI-Y CLUB AT SUPPER MEET

The Hi-Y club held its regular weekly meeting in the form of a social dinner last Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. with Professor Cobb as the speaker.

Mr. Cobb delivered a short address on the high standards of Christian character which should be adopted by the young men of today, and the prominence of the nation-wide organization of the Y. M. C. A. of which the Hi-Y club is proud to be a part.

One of the features of the evening was a speech by Mr. Johnson, popular faculty member, accepting the position of Hi-Y adviser. This was followed by much enthusiasm resulting in nine cheers for the new adviser.

It is believed that the Hi-Y club is at the peak of its existence in the city of Brainerd, reaching greater heights than ever before as a scholastic society with a double aim of preserving a high standard of character among its members and providing a live program to make it a beneficial and enjoyable organization.

The fact that memberships are limited to 25 is explained by the fact that it is thought a few members maintaining high standards can better serve the club than a large number with indifferent ideas. Membership can be received by invitation only and no new members are invited except to fill a vacancy.

Six Weeks' Quizzes

The Freshman cramming season has begun at full force. Six weeks' quizzes are at hand. There'll be no more playing for this week. Mother has all of the wood to bring in, the dishes to wash, and the baby to rock to sleep. She's beginning to think that high school must be getting pretty hard for her sons and daughters, when there isn't even any time to play. But mother won't need to worry much after this week, for we'll all have passed and be singing and whistling happily again. (Perhaps).

LITTLE FALLS STUDENTS VOTE FOR CLASS RINGS

Standard class rings were adopted by the Little Falls high school, after a speech by Milton Hahn or the Josten Manufacturing Company, Owatonna, before the assembly this fall.

The Little Falls paper, The Comet's Tale, is an independent paper, and is published bi-weekly by the students. It is a four page paper, last page to sports.

To Our Football Heroes

Oh ye sing high praises of heroes, Heroes on land and sea,
But a football man on our High School team
Is the greatest hero to me.

Oh ye talk of captains brave and true
Captains on land and sea,
But the captain of our football squad—
He's the bravest one to me.

Oh ye tell of many a brave word
Spoken on land and sea,
But the gallant words "Fight on, my men!"
Are the sweetest ones to me.

SENIORS PLAN FALL PICNIC WEDNESDAY

Seniors were called together last Wednesday afternoon to decide the why and the wherefore of the coming year as to rings, dues, entertainments, etc.

Dues were set at three dollars for the year. They are to be paid to Don Geist.

The ring committee, consisting of Carl Zapffe, Helen Marie Stadlbauer and Ralph Anderson, are to pick out several rings from the various salesmen's lots to submit to the class for the final selection. October 15 has been set as the deadline for considering agent's samples. This will give the Seniors their rings before Christmas.

Everyone seemed to be in favor of some form of diversion after five weeks of strenuous labor, so, in order to take advantage of the autumn woods and weather, a picnic appeared to be the logical solution. It is planned for Wednesday of this week. It is to be held at Gilbert lake. The committee for refreshments follows: Evodia Carlson, Helen Bane and Willy McClenahan.

Aside from the regular business of the meeting, a call was sounded for a cheer leader and a business manager for the Brainonian. Both positions are in urgent need of efficient candidates.

PLAYING THE GAME

So you played the game, and you lost, my lad?

And you're battered and bleeding, too.

And your hopes are dead and your heart is lead.

And the whole world's drab and blue?

And now you are sobbing and crying there

For the hopes that have gone awry.

But the game is through, and it's up to you

To laugh, though you want to cry.

There's got to be somebody to lose, my lad,

It's sad, but it's always true;

And day by day, in the game you play,

It's sure, sometime, to be you.

So grit your teeth to the pain, my lad,

For you battled as best you could,

And there's never shame in a losing game

If you lose like a real man should.

For life itself is a game, my lad,

And we play it as best we may,

And we win or lose as the gods may choose

Who govern the game we play.

But whether we win or we lose, my lad,

There's no call for dark despair

If we give out best, in the final test,

And the rules that we play are fair.

Three Swimmers Given Life Saving Emblems

This summer three people connected with the Brainerd schools earned the right to the life saving emblem. After diligent practice, they passed the severe tests qualifying them for the right to wear the badge.

They are: Eula Michael, city and school nurse, Helen Marie Stadlbauer, senior, and Jean Mostler, alumna and former teacher.

They are to be congratulated and we are very proud of them. Helen Bane also passed this test but could not receive an emblem as she was not of age.

Hamline Oracle Grows in Forty-second Year

The Hamline Oracle, of Hamline university, is celebrating its forty-second birthday by enlarging to seven columns. With the addition of the extra columns, the pages are also lengthened. The Oracle is not the work of any one or two people, but it is published by the students.

The increased cost of the Oracle makes it necessary for them to solicit more advertising than had been the custom.

THE BURGERH COLUMN By HAM and LIM

Have you heard the one about the two tenderfeet who went up to a hunting lodge on the north shore drive for a few days' hunting? The guide gave each a complete outfit including clothes, a gun, some shells and four dogs.

They set out for the woods following the dogs. About half an hour later they came back to the lodge. The guide rushed out to meet them, gushing: "What, back so soon? I suppose you want some more shells." The two hunters looked at him in a puzzled way and answered, "Oh, no, we came for some more dogs."

Literary Lights Get Journalism Technique

The fourth Brainonian meeting of the season was held Wednesday, Oct. 3, after school in the old court house, for the purpose of organizing the Brainonian staff. Dick Ebert presided. Assignments were given out to aspiring boys and girls who said they were willing to write for the school paper.

Miss Herwig gave an advisory talk on the important things in newspaper work. "In a good story," she said, "one finds the answer to five things in the very first paragraph: who, where, when, why, and what. These five points, as she explained to the embryonic journalists, fledgling writers, ambitious literary lights and anxious feature writers are all grouped under one head, commonly called the lead.

To illustrate her talk, she diagrammed it on the blackboard.

The second point stressed was to write promptly and well, or in newspaper language, "to cover your assignment." When a reporter is sent out to cover a story, he must get the facts, write them properly, and turn them in at the proper time. Excuses, verbal or written, never filled a paper.

Miss Herwig said she was a contributor to the "Rah Rah," a school paper at Sauk Center, and knows how difficult it is at times to find news.

Her talk was much appreciated by the Brainonian staff and it is now felt that many, if not all stories, will be filed with the Brainonian office by Friday night, for next Tuesday's publication.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS ORGANIZES THURSDAY

All French students who desire to enter France through the portals of a school club, please report in Miss Taylor's room immediately after dismissal Thursday afternoon. Here will be discussed the activities of the club for this year, but mainly we wish to determine its representation.

Le Cercle Francais will be under the direction of Miss Taylor and a staff of French II people, so an interesting year is certainly evident; and, oh, of course, all tender babes in the fresh pursuit of French will be initiated. These are only details and will be settled in a supplementary meeting of French II students.

PEDAGOGUES PEPPY AT PERFECT PICNIC

Grade and High School teachers threw aside their academic cares, on Thursday evening, when they all joined in an "all faculty" picnic at Gilbert lake in the famous old Holmes' pavilion. Some of the teachers, strange to say, owned cars in which they transported their less fortunate colleagues to the scene of action, in spite of the rain and mud.

Being deprived of boating and sight-seeing, they waited in the pavilion for the biggest event of the affair, "the eats." This had been prepared and was served by the Misses Pearl Torgerson, Marie Christianson, Helen Piergolla, Doris Taylor, Clara Devens, Luella Austin and our own efficient Miss Tornstrom.

The menu provided a real meal rather than the usual picnic lunch. Everything from meat loaf and escalloped potatoes to coffee and cake tickled the palates of the hungry pedagogues.

After some time had elapsed during which the usual equilibrium, characteristic of "school marm's," was unbalanced by the excess amount of food they consumed, the faculty played "Three Deep," "Flying Dutchman" and "This Way and That," with Miss O'Brien in a pre-eminent role in the mentioned games.

Dancing was also a form of amusement. Only two male members were present, one of whom did not dance, so that the other was very popular while the Misses Marshall and White furnished the music.

The party broke up early, due to numerous engagements, but we dare say that this first "all faculty" picnic shall not be the last.

There will be a meeting of the Latin club in Miss O'Brien's assembly room at 3:45 Thursday afternoon. As this is a very important meeting, it is necessary that all members be present.

4-H CLUB DELEGATE AT MEMPHIS, TENN.

Severn Anderson, a freshman of Brainerd high school, left today for Memphis, Tennessee, to attend the National Livestock Association Show held there this week.

Severn has for some time been active in the 4-H club. His winning first place in the district meet entitled him to attend the show. His trip, three days each way, and his four days' stay at Memphis, is being sponsored by the Brainerd Lions club.

The high school orchestra met last Thursday evening in the old court house assembly to try to reconstruct last year's organization. It is thought likely that there will be enough new members to make up for the loss of those who graduated last spring.

As all the old music burned in the fire of last spring, Miss Rickard had to send for a complete new lot. Part of the music arrived so that it was used at the last meeting.

ALUMNI

Miss Eleanor Frayer, former graduate of Brainerd high school, was married last Thursday to Alois Berger of St. Cloud.

Wallace Anderson has been named manager of the Standard Oil Company at Sixth and Kingwood.

Martius Seeger, who graduated in '25, is taking a course in journalism at the University of Chicago.

Among those who are attending Gustavus Adolphus this year for the first time are: Elsie Swanson, Milton Bergstrand and Vernon Dieckhaus.

William Fitzharris, captain of the basketball team two years ago, has enrolled at St. Thomas college.

Thelma Hendrickson, who has been visiting here for the past week, returned to St. Cloud where she will resume her studies. She graduated in 1926.

Gerald Anderson, William Backen, Elmer Erickson, Fred Gruenhagen and Sigurd Flaata have entered the University of Minnesota.

Dale Sanders, graduate of last year, recently left for Carlton where he will complete his studies.

AND THEY BURIED HIM OVER THE HILL

An excited Senior came rushing down the hall and stopped his friend with these words, "Jim, have you heard the news?"

"No," said Jim, "what is it?"

"Do you mean to tell me you don't know what it is? Why, it's spread all over the City Hall. Everybody knows about it. The teachers know about it. I tell you it's spread all over the City Hall!"

"You don't say! It must be an awful scandal," exclaimed Jim. Soon the two excited speakers were surrounded by a group of equally excited and also very curious scholars. "What's the news?" was heard all over.

"I'll be right back and then I'll tell you," said the Senior, and away he went.

"I wonder what it is," said one of the group. "I did notice that Miss Taylor was very pale and I saw her whispering to Miss Tornstrom."

"I saw the nurse here this morning," said another. "Maybe someone was hurt. But of course, she could have been here to examine the pupils' teeth."

"Maybe somebody died!" exclaimed the first. "I saw Mr. Cobb here this morning."

"Sh! Don't yell so in the presence of the dead," cautioned another student.

Just then the Senior came back panting furiously. "What's spread all over the City Hall?" they all asked in one breath.

"Why, the roof, of course!" calmly replied the Senior as he darted off again.

Mr. La Meter impresses Boys With Music Talk

Monday afternoon at 3:45, the Boys' Glee club met with Mr. La Meter in the assembly room at the court house. No practice was held, but both he and Miss Rickard spoke to them about the importance of music.

In his address, Mr. La Meter said that music had not been his profession but his hobby. He stated that many times boys started their musical career through Glee club work in high school; for instance, four boys, whose voices blend, sing together at some school program; soon they are asked to sing at some local club meeting. This is their start in publicity. Later they sing at some large gathering. The next step is radio broadcasting, and they probably end with a contract on the Keith-Orpheum circuit. Their career is then begun.

He also said that generally girls Glee clubs are larger than boys', but what boy would give a girl the upper hand? In addition, they can have a lot of fun. He finished with an appeal for new members so that the Boys' Glee club this year can be a live organization. Then perhaps a mixed chorus can be had for the first time in Brainerd high.

There were about 30 boys in attendance Monday night.

RUMORS THAT COOLIDGE WILL TAKE WORLD TOUR

Washington, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—Rumors that President Coolidge plans a world tour after leaving the White House on March 4, could not be confirmed here today.

Mr. Coolidge, according to the rumors, was said to be considering writing a series of articles on his impressions abroad and it was reported he had conferred with a nationally known writer regarding publication rights.

Thus far, President Coolidge has given no definite indication of his plans.

BRAINERD GRIDDERS DEFEAT DOWN RIVER RIVALS BY 7-0

GABIOU SCORES TOUCHDOWN ON AN OFF TACKLE PLAY

The B. H. S. football team defeated the Little Falls gridders at the Sixth street grounds Friday afternoon by a count of 7-0. The down river rivals presented a team which showed great improvement over the one of last year and although unable to score, they put up a strong fight throughout the entire game.

Brainerd won the toss and Captain Fuller decided to defend the south goal. Hautala kicked off to Little Falls, the ball being returned about ten yards. Little Falls failed to gain and punted. Dybvik caught the punt, and, aided by some excellent blocking, returned the ball 40 yards. Brainerd made a first down by plays through the line, but the Little Falls defense tightened and Brainerd lost the ball on downs. Both teams found it hard to gain the necessary ground and they exchanged punts, Brainerd getting the better of the trade. Little Falls put the ball in play on their own 5-yard line. Little Falls again punted and by some excellent running, Dybvik returned the ball to the ten yard line. On the next play Gabiou took the ball over for the only touchdown of the game. Guin made the extra point on a place kick. Brainerd again kicked off to Little Falls, the latter failing to gain, and punted. A pass, Gabiou to Goedderz, netted 20 yards. Goedderz was injured on the play and Guin went to right end. Swanson going into the half back position. Brainerd failed to gain and the quarter ended with the ball in the possession of Little Falls.

At the start of the second quarter Little Falls made a first down. On the next play they were penalized 5 yards for offside and they punted. Dybvik returned the punt 15 yards. Aided by a 5 yard penalty, Brainerd made a first down. On the next play Brainerd failed to make 10 yards and punted. Little Falls started a drive down the field, making two first downs. Little Falls tried a pass but Dybvik interrupted, ending the drive. Geist was substituted for Palmer at left tackle. An exchange of punts was made as the half ended.

At the start of the second half, Brainerd kicked off, Little Falls returning to the middle of the field. As the result of excellent interference Little Falls made two first downs. Brainerd retaliated and also made two first downs, the first as the result of a pass, Gabiou to Swanson, and the second by an end run by Gabiou, who made about 15 yards. During the last minutes of the quarter, Little Falls made a desperate effort to score, bringing the ball down to Brainerd's five-yard line.

Brainerd, fighting in the shadow of its own goal posts, made a desperate effort and stemmed the advance of the down river team. Larson was substituted for Foster and Wise went in for Dybvik to bolster up the Brainerd team. Little Falls lost the ball on downs and Brainerd immediately punted out of danger. Little Falls again made two first downs by off tackle plays. Brainerd got the ball on downs and started a final rally. Gabiou made 25 yards by a jaunt around the end, making it first down. Gabiou again took the ball, this time gaining 20 yards. A pass, Gabiou to Guin, was complete, gaining several yards just as the game ended.

Brainerd outplayed Little Falls during the first quarter, but during the last three the teams fought on even terms. The teams fought and were equal on the number of first downs but Brainerd showed a stronger aerial attack, making three first downs by passes while Little Falls failed to make any.

Line-ups:
Brainerd—Lammon, 1c; Palmer, 1t; Abrahamson, 1g; Hautala, 1c; Foster, rg; Garvey, rt; Goedderz, re; Dybvik, qb; Gabiou, 1h; Guin, rh; Fuller, fb.

Substitutes — Guin for Goedderz. Swanson for Guin, Geist for Palmer, Larson for Foster, Wise for Dybvik.

Little Falls—Gierock, 1c; Mattson, 1t; Savage, 1g; Riddle, c; Proper, rg; Domnick, rt; Ring, re; Fortier, qb; Purdy, 1h; Connell, rh; Hall, fb.

Referee—Dennerly, Aitkin.

Mistress: Have you given the goldfish any water yet?
Maid: No, ma'm, they ain't finished the water I gave them yesterday yet.

YE EDITOR

We are pleased to note that the attendance at the Little Falls game was quite a bit larger than that at the Milaca tilt two weeks ago. The beautiful Indian summer day, not too warm, not too cold, seemed to call the students, and a large number responded.

But the warm weather seemed also to dampen their ardor. In spite of the gallant efforts of Edythe Titus to congregate yelling fell rather flat. Just as the girls, under Edythe's leading, lit into a yell, all the deep-voiced males in the vicinity seemed to move to another place on the sidelines; and when it came to the snake-dance at the half, it seemed to be composed entirely of girls.

C'mon, fellas, when Mr. Kasch's warriors line up against Staples Friday afternoon, let's cooperate with Edythe and show 'em we have lots of school spirit and pep, and make some real noise.

MR. COBB TALKS TO HI-Y CLUB AT SUPPER MEET

The Hi-Y club held its regular weekly meeting in the form of a social dinner last Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. with Professor Cobb as the speaker.

Mr. Cobb delivered a short address on the high standards of Christian character which should be adopted by the young men of today, and the prominence of the nation-wide organization of the Y. M. C. A. of which the Hi-Y club is proud to be a part.

One of the features of the evening was a speech by Mr. Johnson, popular faculty member, accepting the position of Hi-Y adviser. This was followed by much enthusiasm resulting in nine cheers for the new adviser.

It is believed that the Hi-Y club is at the peak of its existence in the city of Brainerd, reaching greater heights than ever before as a scholastic society with a double aim of preserving a high standard of character among its members and providing a live program to make it a beneficial and enjoyable organization.

The fact that memberships are limited to 25 is explained by the fact that it is thought a few members maintaining high standards can better serve the club than a large number with indifferent ideas. Membership can be received by invitation only and no new members are invited except to fill a vacancy.

Six Weeks' Quizzes

The Freshman cramming season has begun at full force. Six weeks' quizzes are at hand. There'll be no more playing for this week. Mother has all of the wood to bring in, the dishes to wash, and the baby to rock to sleep. She's beginning to think that high school must be getting pretty hard for her sons and daughters, when there isn't even any time to play. But mother won't need to worry much after this week, for we'll all have passed and be singing and whistling happily again. (Perhaps).

LITTLE FALLS STUDENTS VOTE FOR CLASS RINGS

Standard class rings were adopted by the Little Falls high school, after a speech by Milton Hahn of the Jostens Manufacturing Company, Owatonna, before the assembly this fall.

The Little Falls paper, The Comet's Tale, is an independent paper, and is published bi-weekly by the students. It is a four page paper, last page to sports.

To Our Football Heroes

Oh ye sing high praises of heroes, Heroes on land and sea,
But a football man on our High School team
Is the greatest hero to me.

Oh ye talk of captains brave and true
Captains on land and sea,
But the captain of our football squad—
He's the bravest one to me.

Oh ye tell of many a brave word
Spoken on land and sea,
But the gallant words "Fight on, my men!"
Are the sweetest ones to me.

SENIORS PLAN FALL PICNIC WEDNESDAY

Seniors were called together last Wednesday afternoon to decide the why and the wherefore of the coming year as to rings, dues, entertainments, etc.

Dues were set at three dollars for the year. They are to be paid to Don Geist.

The ring committee, consisting of Carl Zapffe, Helen Marie Stadlbauer and Ralph Anderson, are to pick out several rings from the various salesmen's lots to submit to the class for the final selection. October 15 has been set as the deadline for considering agent's samples. This will give the seniors their rings before Christmas.

Everyone seemed to be in favor of some form of diversion after five weeks of strenuous labor, so, in order to take advantage of the autumn woods and weather, a picnic appeared to be the logical solution. It is planned for Wednesday of this week. It is to be held at Gilbert lake. The committee for refreshments follows: Evodia Carlson, Helen Bane and Willy McClenahan.

Aside from the regular business of the meeting, a call was sounded for a cheer leader and a business manager for the Brainonian. Both positions are in urgent need of efficient candidates.

PLAYING THE GAME

So you played the game, and you lost, my lad?
And you're battered and bleeding, too.

And your hopes are dead and your heart is lead,
And the whole world's drab and blue?

And now you are sobbing and crying there
For the hopes that have gone awry.

But the game is through, and it's up to you
To laugh, though you want to cry.

There's got to be somebody to lose, my lad,
It's sad, but it's always true;

And day by day, in the game you play,
It's sure, sometime, to be you.

So grit your teeth to the pain, my lad,
For you battled as best you could,

And there's never shame in a losing game
If you lose like a real man should.

For life itself is a game, my lad,
And we play it as best we may,

And we win or lose as the gods may choose
Who govern the game we play.

But whether we win or we lose, my lad,
There's no call for dark despair

If we give out best, in the final test,
And the rules that we play are fair.

Three Swimmers Given Life Saving Emblems

This summer three people connected with the Brainerd schools earned the right to the life saving emblem. After diligent practice, they passed the severe tests qualifying them for the right to wear the badge.

They are: Eula Michael, city and school nurse, Helen Marie Stadlbauer, senior, and Jean Mosier, alumna and former teacher.

They are to be congratulated and we are very proud of them. Helen Bane also passed this test but could not receive an emblem as she was not of age.

Hamline Oracle Grows in Forty-second Year

The Hamline Oracle, of Hamline university, is celebrating its forty-second birthday by enlarging to seven columns. With the addition of the extra columns, the pages are also lengthened. The Oracle is not the work of any one or two people, but it is published by the students.

The increased cost of the Oracle makes it necessary for them to solicit more advertising than had been the custom.

Have you heard the one about the two tenderfeet who went up to a hunting lodge on the north shore drive for a few days' hunting? The guide gave each a complete outfit including clothes, a gun, some shells and four dogs.

They set out for the woods following the dogs. About half an hour later they came back to the lodge. The guide rushed out to meet them, gushing: "What, back so soon? I suppose you want some more shells." The two hunters looked at him in a puzzled way and answered, "Oh, no, we came for some more dogs."

Literary Lights Get Journalism Technique

The fourth Brainonian meeting of the season was held Wednesday, Oct. 3, after school in the old court house, for the purpose of organizing the Brainonian staff. Dick Ebert presided. Assignments were given out to aspiring boys and girls who said they were willing to write for the school paper.

Miss Herwig gave an advisory talk on the important things in newspaper work. "In a good story," she said, "one finds the answer to five things in the very first paragraph: who, where, when, why, and what. These five points, as she explained to the embryonic journalists, fledgling writers, ambitious literary lights and anxious feature writers are all grouped under one head, commonly called the lead.

To illustrate her talk, she diagramed it on the blackboard.

RUMORS THAT COOLIDGES WILL TAKE WORLD TOUR

Washington, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—Rumors that President Coolidge plans a world tour after leaving the White House on March 4, could not be confirmed here today.

Mr. Coolidge, according to the rumors, was said to be considering writing a series of articles on his impressions abroad and it was reported he had conferred with a nationally known writer regarding publication rights.

Thus far, President Coolidge has given no definite indication of his plans.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

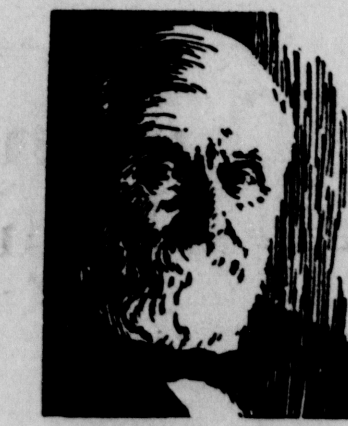

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Two-Thirds of Students do Not Take Foreign Languages,
Report Shows

The latest figures from the office of the superintendent of schools completely discredit the opinion of many that high school students learn nothing practical in high school and that most of their time is taken up with foreign languages that "will do them no good." Figures show that two-thirds of the students in Brainerd high school do not take foreign languages and that one half of the students are taking one or more commercial subjects.

English seems the most popular judging from the students enrolled, with history second, science, third, and the commercial subjects fourth. The foreign languages, Latin and French are last as far as students enrolled is concerned. The figures for the total students enrolled in each department is: English, 592; history, 568; science, 475; commercial subjects, 369; mathematics, 315; Latin, 128; French, 87.

The attendance in the public schools at the opening of school was 2,143. The average attendance throughout the month was 2,006, while the average number attending the schools throughout the year is 2,058.

One of the most remarkable endorsements ever given a proprietary medicine was the statement made on Friday of last week by Mrs. Cora Morey, who resides at 21st & Minnesota Sts., Topeka, Kans. The story of her wonderful restoration to health was told in her own words. Mrs. Morey, who is 47 years old and the mother of five children, said:

"For five years I simply suffered agony with stomach, liver and gall bladder trouble, and have always been bothered by constipation. I tried every sort of medicine and treatment but they didn't do any good. I would have awful pains and cramps in my sides and stomach. I also had bad sick headaches. Many a night I would awake about three o'clock in the morning and would be so sick and nauseated I felt like I would rather be dead than alive. These spells would last for days at a time. I just felt like giving up. My husband finally sent me to Kansas City to a stomach specialist and I was under his care for more than five months but didn't seem to improve any."

"Last June I passed about a dozen and a half large gallstones and then I thought sure I would get well. But I felt better for a few weeks and then began having those same spells with my stomach and pains in my back and sides. Then my whole nervous system seemed to go back on me. I couldn't sleep and never got a good night's rest. My skin and the whites of my eye were as yellow as a pumpkin. No one will ever know how much I suffered."

"It was the latter part of June when my husband brought home a bottle of Sargon and a bottle of Sargon Pills. I started taking them both and began improving right away. I have now taken five bottles and believe it is going to cure me entirely. I feel like a different woman altogether. I don't have those awful sickish spells with my head any more. I rest well at night and my skin and eyes are clearing up fine. My skin looks better than it has in years. The Pills keep my bowels in perfect condition, too, and I still take two of them every night."

"Sargon has done me so much good that I am afraid to stop taking it. I feel that I should take at least a dozen more bottles to be sure of being entirely well. I know my husband spent $500 in the year before I started taking it, on hospital bills alone—and that does not include doctor bills."

Sargon, the revolutionary new tonic and invigorant referred to by Mrs. Morey, can be obtained in Brainerd from Henry P. Dunn; and in Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen.

A recent purchase by the Brainerd Radio club that resembles in a manner a radio set, having tubes, dials, known as the "trouble finder," or "radio hound" was demonstrated at the meeting of the club last evening.

Already five "trouble makers" have been located by the instrument and it is hoped that much of the local interference from electric line leaks may be eliminated after the trouble has been located by the machine. Cooperation in eradicating the trouble when located in lines has been promised by the Water and Light department.

Bartley V. Eckholm was given authority last evening to make a radio census of the city to determine the number of radio users in the city and to solicit membership. D. D. SCHRADER IS LAID TO REST

Large Attendance at the Funeral Services Held at the First Methodist Church Yesterday

COFFIN BANKED WITH FLOWERS
Masonic Ceremonies Held at the Grave, Pallbearers Were All Masons

A soft, warm October sun glowed through the stained glass church windows at the Methodist church yesterday afternoon and gave promise, as it were, of the immortality which the future holds for the soul. Within the crowded church were the many friends and relatives who mourned the passing away of David D. Schrader.

Beautiful flowers in sprays and designs were banked about the casket. A song service of the utmost beauty and simplicity added to the solemnity of the occasion. A quartet composed of A. C. Mraz, John M. Bye, Fred Lind and R. G. Jenkins sang and there was a solo by Fred Lind, both accompaniments being played by Mrs. Louis Knudsen, the organist. Dr. G. I. Badeaux sang a solo and his accompaniment was played by Mrs. Walter F. Wieland, pianist.

Rev. Floyd Kufus, the minister, gave a sermon which conveyed in lofty sentiments the philosophy of life and death, the immortality of the soul, and dwelled upon the good works of the deceased. He traced his life's history, his steadfast membership in the Methodist church, his many activities, the good he had done in the community, the church, the home.

The active pallbearers were Masons, fraternity friends, including W. A. M. Johnstone, Edw. Anderson, Andrew Anderson, D. A. Peterson, J. F. Elkins and Judge L. B. Kinder.

The honorary pallbearers were Congressman Harold Knutson, Postmaster Carl Adams, George Erlson, A. P. Cardie, A. M. Opsahl, John A. Oberg of Deerwood, Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul, John Leak, Julius Nelson and R. J. Harte of Pequot.

At the grave the ceremonies were conducted in the beautiful rites of the Masonic order. The services preceding all at the home were limited to a short prayer.

Among the mourners were representatives from the state game and fish department, the state central republican committee and other organizations. Among the floral tributes were those from the republican state central committee, the republican county committee and the democratic county committee.

Among the relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barker of Mason City, Iowa (Mrs. Barker is a sister of Mrs. Schrader); J. J. Schrader, a brother of the deceased, from Chatfield, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Nelson of Pequot (Mrs. Nelson is a sister of the deceased); nieces and nephews including Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Leslie of Glenwood, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson of Pequot.

Overloaded With Pipes

Protests by players of Goulburn, Australia, against the type of trophies awarded to tournament winners by the tennis association has caused the officials to decide to give successful contestants open orders hereafter. One player stated that in recent years he had won 14 pipes despite the fact that he never smokes.

The Level Road

The peril of the level way is greater than the peril of the hills. There is nothing more exhausting than a level stretch, unbroken by change. More people break down beneath the monotony of life than beneath its changes. There is scarcely a greater achievement than the victory of the man who keeps fresh and vigorous on the level road.

Treating Tortoise Shell

The honorary pallbearers were Congressman Harold Knutson, Postmaster Carl Adams, George Ericson, A. P. Cardle, A. M. Opsahl, John A. Oberg of Deerwood, Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul, John Leak, Julius Nelson and R. J. Harte of Pequot.

At the grave the ceremonies were conducted in the beautiful rites of the Masonic order. The services preceding all at the home were limited to a short prayer.

Among the mourners were representatives from the state game and fish department, the state central republican committee and other organizations. Among the floral tributes were those from the republican state central committee, the republican county committee and the democratic county committee.

Among the relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barker of Mason City, Iowa (Mrs. Barker is a sister of Mrs. Schrader); J. J. Schrader, a brother of the deceased, from Chut-field, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Nelson of Pequot (Mrs. Nelson is a sister of the deceased); nieces and nephews including Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Leslie of Glenwood, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson of Pequot.

Treating Tortoise Shell

Tortoise shell, as it comes to market from the West Indies, is coarse, dirty, and lusterless. Only skillful and patient manipulation makes it the rich material it eventually becomes.

Overloaded With Pipes

Protests by players of Goulburn, Australia, against the type of trophies awarded to tournament winners by the tennis association has caused the officials to decide to give successful contestants open orders hereafter. One player stated that in recent years he had won 14 pipes despite the fact that he never smokes.

The Level Road

The peril of the level way is greater than the peril of the hills. There is nothing more exhausting than a level road stretch, unbroken by change. More people break down beneath the monotony of life than beneath its changes. There is scarcely a greater achievement than the victory of the man who keeps fresh and vigorous on the level road.

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgewood

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

WHEN Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor, dies, his young and pretty daughter, Janet, obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario, while her brother, Frank, an idler, goes South. Janet makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and Dr. David Churchill. When Montague insults her, Janet becomes Dr. Churchill's secretary. He tells her he is in love with her and contemplates divorcing his wife, so Janet gives up her position and goes to live with Chester Quigg, Leonard's artist uncle, and his charming little daughter, Alice. She learns how to placate old Mrs. Quigg, Chester's mother, and generally makes life pleasant for the Quiggs. Her brother, Frank, returns home broke and in debt, and accepts $1,000 from Leonard, secretly. In the meantime Janet is falling in love with Leonard. She goes driving with him in his new car, but they quarrel, and he calls her a gold digger. The next morning he sends her a small gold shovel and when he phones she hangs up. Frank admits accidentally that Leonard has lent him the money to pay his debts, and introduces Janet to Cora Niles, his sweetheart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

LIKE many others connected with the arts, Janet rarely glanced at a newspaper. So she never read of the serious illness of John Montague, and the first intimation that she received on the subject was when his secretary telephoned.

"This is Miss Robbins speaking," came a voice, and Janet vaguely remembered the woman who looked like a horse. "Miss Wilde, she went on tearfully, 'is not going to live—and he's asking for you."

"Mr. Montague is dying?" Janet echoed.

Miss Robbins went on, punctuating her sentences with sobs. It appeared that John Montague was dying in his apartment above the theatre, because with characteristic obstinacy he had refused to be taken to a hospital. He was insisting upon seeing Janet.

"But, of course, I would have come," Janet assured Miss Robbins. "Why didn't you send for me before?"

"There was difficulty with that Lucille Rhodes," the secretary explained. "She had been trying to keep everybody away from him, and it was only just now with a sort of artificial strength, Mr. Montague was able to assert himself. Will you please hurry?"

It was somewhat of a shock to Janet on entering his bedroom, to find John Montague propped up with pillows, a whiskey by his side.

"They tried to stop me having a farewell drink," he said with much of his old manner, as he held out his hand to Janet, "but they couldn't do it. My train is due to go at any moment, and I made a hoot of difference if I had a drink or if I didn't. Sit down!"

"You don't seem to have changed," Janet remarked, taking the chair he indicated. "Same old temper."

"I want to talk about you," he said roughly. "Are you sane, or womanish?"

"Oh, fairly sane," she smiled. "I want you to do me a favor, to said, staring at her from under his bushy eyebrows. 'Don't beat about the bush—will you, or won't you?"

you? Hurry up now, that train's late as it is! I can hear the angels shouting. 'All aboard.' Will you do what I want?"

"If it's possible," Janet said quietly. "What is it?"

He turned away from her, and picking up the glass swallowed the whiskey.

"In an hour—two—for all I know, I shall see Fenimore Wilde," he said, looking away from Janet.

"I want to be able to tell Fenimore that I behaved badly to his daughter, but that his daughter and I understand each other, and that she gave me tangible proof of forgetting what I did. How about it?"

"Oh, of course, I forgive you," Janet said quickly, placing her hand on his. "Don't let that worry you."

"Words!" he snapped at her, as his hand squeezed her fingers. "Make them good. I want to be able to tell Fenimore that I behaved like a yellow hound, but that in a way I made up for it by seeing to it that his daughter would not have to fight the world quite so strenuously. Shut up!"

He went on, thinking Janet was about to interrupt him.

"John Montague talking. Listen, even if it hurts you. I am a very rich man—much richer than you think, and I want to leave you a few pennies—not very much—but just enough to keep the wolf from the door so that you won't have to work for any other blackguard like me. Do you promise to take what I have left you, and use it, and not give it away? If you don't promise me, then I know you haven't forgiven me, and I'm feeling weak, and this is tiring me. Yes or no?"

Janet hesitated, and he barked at her: "Speak up!"

"I accept, and I thank you," Janet agreed quickly. "It is good of you to think of me."

"That's good," he smiled. "I have left all of it to a University except for a few legacies of which one is yours. You'll get what's coming to you right away, free of death-duty, and so will the others, as by far the greater bulk of it goes to the University. That's all. I haven't tied it up, as those things never work out, and I flatter you by imagining you have sufficient intelligence to use the income and not spend the capital. If I had been a few years younger, you'd be a very rich woman in a few hours, because I would have married you whether you wanted it or not. You'd be sitting there by the bed wishing I'd hurry up and wondering exactly how many millions I'd cut up for. And you're a nice child."

Rather feebly he raised Janet's hand to his lips. The nurse, conquering her resentment, came back into the room.

"You can go—but remember your promise! No refusals, and no giving it away—the capital, I mean," John Montague smiled wryly at Janet.

Stooping over the bed, Janet kissed the dying man's forehead.

"Had to be dying to get that hadn't it?" he flashed at her, and then closed his eyes, and lay quiet as Janet left the room.

In the hall near the tiny elevator, Janet encountered Lucille Rhodes. The great star nodded unpleasantly.

"Mr. Montague was asking for you," she said in a patronizing voice. "Nearly every chorus girl on Broadway has tried to see him, as his secret charities were so vast."

"I suppose you mean to be rude," Janet answered mildly. "It hardly seems worth it at such a time, and I don't mind being called a chorus girl. I like them."

Janet went back to the studio, where she told Chester Quigg what had happened.

"You'd have been a fool to have refused it," he decided. "I don't suppose it's much, but whatever it is, people will talk."

"Oh, they'll say that there was something between you and Montague," Chester went on. "I know the world, and that's what they'll say. It will be in your hands to decide if it's important or not."

"I don't care what people say," Janet exclaimed. "I liked him today, and he was so brave. I hope I go as bravely when my time comes."

"The one who will make trouble by gossiping will be Lucille Rhodes," Chester surmised. "She will imply everything—leave it to her."

"You forget that John Montague and my father were friends for many years," Janet put in.

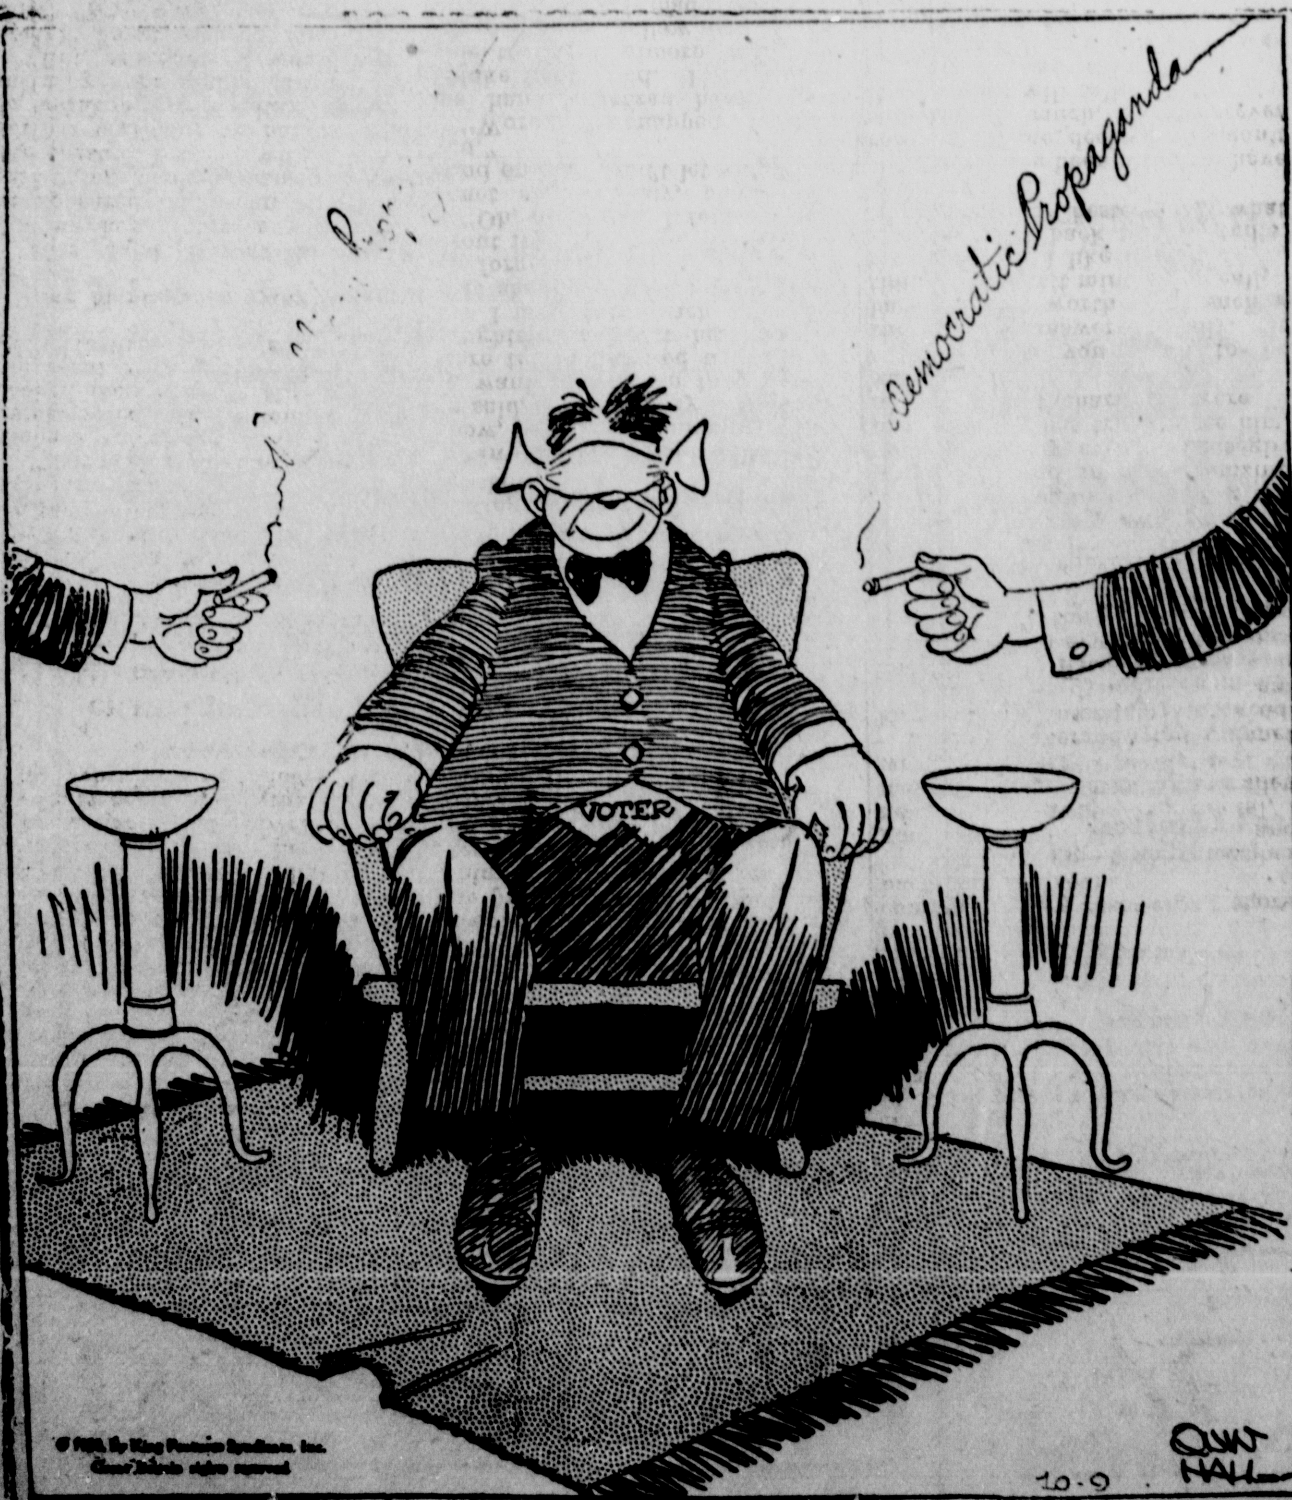

"That won't make any difference," Chester laughed, pulling his Van Dyke beard. "A spiteful woman can imply anything, and a little think like a fact will have nothing to do with it. But I'm glad you had the sense to accept his offer."

"He hasn't any near relatives, and he obviously wanted me to accept—so why shouldn't I?" Janet retorted wisely.

And in the early hours of the following morning, Janet was awakened by the telephone. It was Miss Robbins who called to tell her that John Montague was dead.

The Orchard Watchman

Tammany Hall has been the watchman of that orchard, the city treasury, more often than any other organization, and greedily as well as immature men have usually been assigned to its outposts.

Big John Kennedy told his protege: "A man who can take care of himself with his hands, an' who never lets whiskey fool him or steal his head can go far in this game of politics. An' it's a pretty good game at that, is politics, and can be brought to pay like a bank."—M. R. Werner in Tammany Hall.

REPORT MASSACRE OF 200,000 CHINESE IN KANSU PROVINCE

New York, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Massacre of 200,000 Chinese in Kansu province, China, was reported today in an appeal for relief given out here by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chairman of the China famine relief organization in New York.

The appeal included a letter from Leighton P. Rand, of the China Inland Mission organization at Lan-Chow-Fu, Kansu province.

Rand reported great misery and suffering. He said Moslems, who number a third of the population, had started raids and depredations and that reports from the country districts showed 200,000 killed so far. The letter was dated Aug. 17.

KOHLER'S NAME NOT KEPT OFF BALLOT IN WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—(UP)—The Wisconsin supreme court today denied the application of Fred M. Wyllie, Madison attorney, for a writ of mandamus to keep the name of Walter J. Kohler, republican nominee for governor, off the ballot in the November election.

Wyllie's petition for an order commanding Secretary of State Theodore Dammann to cancel or correct his certification of Kohler as the nominee was argued before the court yesterday. The Madison attorney based his request on alleged violation of the corrupt practices act by expenditures on behalf of Kohler.

Miss Robbins went on, punctuating her sentences with sobs. It appeared that John Montague was dying in his apartment above the theatre, because with characteristic obstinacy he had refused to be taken to a hospital. He was insisting upon seeing Janet.

"But, of course, I would have come!" Janet assured Miss Robbins. "Why didn't you send for me before?"

"There was difficulty with that Lucille Rhodes," the secretary explained. "She had been trying to keep everybody away from him, and it was only just now with a sort of artificial strength, Mr. Montague was able to assert himself. Will you please hurry?"

It was somewhat of a shock to Janet on entering his bedroom, to find John Montague propped up with pillows, a whiskey by his side.

"They tried to stop me having a farewell drink," he said with much of his old manner, as he held out his hand to Janet, "but they couldn't do it. My train is due to go at any moment, and I read the fools admit that it didn't make a hoot of difference if I had a drink or if I didn't. Sit down!"

"You don't seem to have changed," Janet remarked, taking the chair he indicated. "Same old temper."

"I want to talk about you," he said roughly. "Are you sane, or womanish?"

"Oh, fairly sane," she smiled. "I want you to do me a favor."

He said, staring at her from under his bushy eyebrows. "Don't beat about the bush—will you, or won't you?"

you? Hurry up now, that train's late as it is! I can hear the angels shouting. 'All aboard.' He laughed raucously. Will you do what I want?"

"If it's possible," Janet said quietly. "What is it?"

He turned away from her, and picking up the glass swallowed the whiskey.

"In an hour—two—for all I know, I shall see Fenimore Wilde," he said, looking away from Janet. "I want to be able to tell Fenimore that I behaved badly to his daughter, but that his daughter and I understand each other, and that she gave me tangible proof of forgetting what I did. How about it?"

"Oh, of course, I forgive you," Janet said quickly, placing her hand on his. "Don't let that worry you."

"Words!" he snapped at her, as his hand squeezed her fingers. "Make them good. I want to be able to tell Fenimore that I behaved like a yellow hound, but that in a way I made up for it by seeing to it that his daughter would not have to fight the world quite so strenuously. Shut up!"

He went on, thinking Janet was about to interrupt him.

"John Montague talking. Listen, even if it hurts you. I am a very rich man—much richer than you think, and I want to leave you a few pennies—not very much—but just enough to keep the wolf from the door so that you won't have to work for any other blackguard like me. Do you promise to take what I have left you, and use it, and not give it away? If you don't promise me, then I know you haven't forgiven me, and I'm feeling weak, and this is tiring me. Yes or no?"

Janet hesitated, and he barked at her: "Speak up!"

"I accept, and I thank you," Janet agreed quickly. "It is good of you to think of me."

"That's good," he smiled. "I have left all of it to a University except for a few legacies of which one is yours. You'll get what's coming to you right away, free of death-duty, and so will the others, as by far the greater bulk of it goes to the University. That's all. I haven't tied it up, as those things never work out, and I flatter you by imagining you have sufficient intelligence to use the income and not spend the capital. If I had been a few years younger, you'd be a very rich woman in a few hours, because I would have married you whether you wanted it or not. You'd be sitting there by the bed wishing I'd hurry up and wondering exactly how many millions I'd cut up for. And you're a nice child."

Rather feebly he raised Janet's hand to his lips. The nurse, conquering her resentment, came back into the room.

"You can go—but remember your promise! No refusals, and no giving it away—the capital, I mean," John Montague smiled wryly at Janet.

Stooping over the bed, Janet kissed the dying man's forehead.

"Had to be dying to get that hadn't I?" he flashed at her, and then closed his eyes, and lay quiet as Janet left the room.

In the hall near the tiny elevator, Janet encountered Lucille Rhodes. The great star nodded unpleasantly.

"Mr. Montague was asking for you," she said in a patronizing voice. "Nearly every chorus girl on Broadway has tried to see him, as his secret charities were so vast."

"I suppose you mean to be rude," Janet answered mildly. "It hardly seems worth it at such a time, and I don't mind being called a chorus girl. I like them."

Janet went back to the studio, where she told Chester Quigg what had happened.

"You'd have been a fool to have refused it," he decided. "I don't suppose it's much, but whatever it is, people will talk."

"Why?" Janet asked.

"Oh, they'll say that there was something between you and Montague," Chester went on. "I know the world, and that's what they'll say. It will be in your hands to decide if it's important or not."

"I don't care what people say," Janet exclaimed. "I liked him today, and he was so brave. I hope I go as bravely when my time comes."

"The one who will make trouble by gossiping will be Lucille Rhodes," Chester surmised. "She will imply everything—leave it to her."

"You forget that John Montague and my father were friends for many years," Janet put in.

"That won't make any difference," Chester laughed, pulling his Van Dyke beard. "A spiteful woman can imply anything, and a little think like a fact will have nothing to do with it. But I'm glad you had the sense to accept his offer."

"He hasn't any near relatives," she said. "He obviously wanted me to accept—so why shouldn't I?" Janet retorted wisely.

And in the early hours of the following morning, Janet was awakened by the telephone. It was Miss Robbins who called to tell her that John Montague was dead.

The Orchard Watchman

Tammany Hall has been the watchman of that orchard, the city treasury, more often than any other organization, and greedy as well as immature men have usually been assigned to its outposts.

Big John Kennedy told his protege: "A man who can take care of himself with his hands, and who never lets whiskey fool him or steal his head can go far in this game of politics. An it's a pretty good game at that, is politics, and can be brought to pay like a bank."—M. R. Werner in Tammany Hall.

Legion Guest

Lady Edward Spencer-Churchill, aunt of Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill of Great Britain, who recently passed through the Middle West en route to San Antonio, Tex., where she will be a guest of the American Legion's convention. Lady Churchill was one of the chief hostesses in London to the Legionnaires who visited her city while abroad for the Paris convention.

REPORT MASSACRE OF 200,000 CHINESE IN KANSU PROVINCE

New York, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Massacre of 200,000 Chinese in Kansu province, China, was reported today in an appeal for relief given out here by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chairman of the China famine relief organization in New York.

The appeal included a letter from Leighton P. Rand, of the China Inland Mission organization at Lan-chow-fu, Kansu province.

Rand reported great misery and suffering. He said Moslems, who number a third of the population, had started raids and depredations and that reports from the country districts showed 200,000 killed so far. The letter was dated Aug. 17.

KOHLER'S NAME NOT KEPT OFF BALLOT IN WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—(UP)—The Wisconsin supreme court today denied the application of Fred M. Wylie, Madison attorney, for a writ of mandamus to keep the name of Walter J. Kohler, republican nominee for governor, off the ballot in the November election.

Wylie's petition for an order commanding Secretary of State Theodore Dammann to cancel or correct his certification of Kohler as the nominee was argued before the court yesterday. The Madison attorney based his request on alleged violation of the corrupt practices act by expenditures on behalf of Kohler.

State of Minnesota, County of Crow Wing. In District Court, Fifteenth Judicial District.

In the matter of the application of William W. Eastman as guardian ad item for William W. Eastman, Jr., and John Hale Eastman to vacate the street designated as "Boat Cove Landing" and that portion of the street designated as "Ridge Wood Road" lying north of Lots 383, 384 and 385, all being a part of the land platted as "Gull Lake Shores," according to the plat thereof in the office of the Registrar of Titles of said county. Applicant.

The petitioner above named having made and filed in said court his petition praying for the vacation of certain portions of platted Gull Lake Shores, according to the plat thereof in the office of the Registrar of Titles for Crow Wing County, Minnesota.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that said application will be brought on for hearing at the next general term of said court to be held at Brainerd in said county on November 6th, 1928, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard.
